DICTATORSHIP TREND TO END DECLARES KING

After Election It Is Plan of Liberals to Reverse Course Witnessed Since Bennett Government Took Office and Restore Full Parliamentary Control, Says Party Chieftain in Address at Kingston, Ont.

Civil Liberties To Be Safeguarded

Kingston, Ont., Aug. 8.—The Liberal Party is pledged to end "dictatorship" in Canada, restore parliamentary government and safeguard civil liberties.

Mr. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, rounded the rally call for the party when he opened his election tour campaign here yesterday evening.

Sandwiched in a general denunciation of the Bennett government, a dictatorship fashioned along the lines of Hitlerism in Germany and Fascism in Italy was Mr. King's definite promise to investigate penitentiary administration. It would be launched as one of the first actions of his government, the Liberal leader promised.

LIBERTIES DISAPPEAR
In a many-sided indictment of the Bennett government, Mr. King charged that in Canada were being lost "blank cheque" relief legislation, tariffs pegged under the empire trade agreements, military and police forces increased, vesting of unlimited powers in the cabinet and certain clauses of the Marketing Act were cited by him as steps taken by Mr. Bennett in the direction of dictatorship.

Under the Marketing Act, Mr. Bennett could control the whole internal and external trade of Canada, Mr. King charged. Under the relief legislation, he could command every dollar in the treasury. Could a dictator be given more power? the Liberal leader asked.

TO FORM CABINET
It was sixteen years since Mr. King became leader of the Liberal Party and he said he was more than hopeful he would be selected by the people to form another administration.

Vancouver, Aug. 8.—Mayor G. G. McGeer probably will be unopposed in the Vancouver-Burrard federal Liberal nominating convention to be held here to-morrow, as no other names have been brought forward.

Wilfred Hanbury, present Liberal M.P. for the riding, will not seek re-election.

Vancouver South Liberals will also nominate to-morrow.

SCHOOL COSTS COULD BE CUT

King Report on Education Finance Proposes Economy Measures

Tens of thousands of dollars annually can be saved in the schools of British Columbia by more careful attention to details of organization and rearrangement of classes and teaching methods, according to the report of Herbert B. King, technical adviser to the Weir-Hart Commission on school finance, presented to the government this government this week.

Mr. King devotes a full chapter of his report to possible economies in the school system.

Dealing at length with the subject of home economics and manual training courses, the most vulnerable target for critics of school costs because they are "the most expensive subjects taught," the technical adviser proposes: (1) To have larger classes for this type of instruction. (2) To conduct elementary schools on the platoon system where junior high schools are not feasible. (3) Grouping of two or three adjoining elementary schools for this sort of instruction where they are not large enough for the platoon system. (4) To substitute the teaching of manual arts where manual training and home economics are unduly expensive to teach.

SENTENCES ARE 180 YEARS

Two Women Given Over Century Each at Chicago For Murder

Associated Press
Chicago, Aug. 8.—Prison sentences of 180 years were given to-day to Mrs. Blanche Dunkel and Mrs. Evelyn Smith for murdering Ervin J. Lang. The sentences were passed by Judge Cornelius Harrington, who yesterday heard the trial of the pair without a jury and found them guilty of slaying the twenty-eight-year-old grocery clerk who became the illicit lover of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Dunkel.

The state had asked the electric chair for both. Such a fate for a woman would have been without precedent in Illinois.

Judge Harrington directed the women be placed in solitary confinement every July 6, the anniversary of their crime. He said they could not be paroled until Mrs. Smith is 106 years old and Mrs. Dunkel is 104.

Council of Canadian Pharmaceutical Association to Prepare Standards For Approval of Provincial Organizations in Dominion

A code of ethics for druggists of Canada will be prepared by a special committee appointed by the council of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association, it was decided by the twenty-third annual convention of the association in the Empress Hotel this morning.

The plan was proposed by J. H. Best, president, of North Battleford, Sask., and received the approval of the delegates after considerable discussion.

Mr. Best gave a brief talk on the need for a code of ethics, outlining it as a plea for an objective. His idea of a code was one which would embody the highest ideals of the profession and one which would receive unanimous endorsement of the provincial associations. The co-operation of the provincial members was essential for the success of a code, he said.

New British-Japan Understanding Soon

Associated Press
London, Aug. 8.—An authoritative source to-day disclosed diplomatic discussions between Great Britain and Japan on various political, economic and naval matters will be inaugurated in Tokyo this autumn with the arrival there of Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, British financial expert.

These plans for discussion were interpreted in informed quarters as new evidence of the efforts of the two governments to consolidate their relations further by a better understanding of the problems and aims of each in the Far East.

Police Take Leader Of Rail Greasing Group of Trekkers

Two Others Who Headed Transients in Escapade Near Golden, B.C., Sought As Twenty-eight Companions Face Court Hearing in Calgary

Calgary, Aug. 8.—One of the leaders of the alleged rail greasing transients who halted a train near Golden, Tuesday, while they climbed aboard, was in custody of the police here to-day.

Two other men, known to have headed the transients in the latest episode of relief camp strikers' trek eastward from British Columbia, were being sought.

A charge of interfering with railway property and endangering life, it was reported, would be laid against the strikers' leaders. Police refused to divulge the name of the man arrested.

B.C. moved another step toward health insurance to-day when Hon. G. M. Weir's "hearings committee" held its first meeting at the Parliament Buildings for organization purposes.

Dates and places for hearings on the draft health insurance bill were discussed, as well as other problems relating to the work of the committee. Dr. Weir addressed the group at the outset, outlining his plans. The committee consists of the following: Percy R. Benough, Vancouver; Miss Grace Fairley, R.N., Vancouver; Dr. Grant Fleming, Montreal; Que. J. H. McDonald, New Westminster; E. W. Neel, Duncan, and Dr. Alton Peckles, Victoria.

The following sat with them as consultants: Dr. H. M. Cassidy, Victoria; C. F. Davis, Duncan; Dr. J. J. Gillis, Merritt; Dr. Alfred K. Haywood, Vancouver; Hon. Douglas S. Pearson, Victoria; Mrs. Helen Douglas Smith, Vancouver; E. S. H. Winn, Vancouver, and Dr. H. E. Young, Victoria.

BLAST DEATHS NOT REPORTED

British Correspondent Says Nazis Have Suppressed News of Explosions

Canadian Press from Havas
London, Aug. 8.—Nazi press censorship has concealed heavy losses of life in German munitions factory explosions recently, a special correspondent of The Manchester Guardian declared to-day.

He said twenty workers were killed at Magedeburg in February by an explosion of which the general public never heard. Ten more workers in the same factory were killed by another blast, and a number were killed July 23 at Bochum. He added that in the most disastrous of all, the Reimsdorf explosion on June 13, though the catastrophe was too great to be concealed, the death list was considerably larger than Nazi authorities admitted.

The two men sought are known to have come to Calgary with the sixty strikers who virtually seized control of the train, but they escaped a police trap in the yards here. They were believed to have left the train on the outskirts of the city.

POLE FLIGHT IS EXPECTED

Associated Press
Moscow, Aug. 8.—Reports circulated to-day that the polar plane was being prepared to take off shortly on a new attempt to reach San Francisco across the North Pole and Canada.

There was no official confirmation, but it was known the defective oil system which turned the three fliers back last week-end had been repaired.

ETHIOPIA'S ARMY 630,000

Armed Forces of Haile Selassie Have Grown; Eight Planes

Canadian Press from Havas
Addis Ababa, Aug. 8.—The armed forces of Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia were estimated to-day at 630,000 men divided into seven armies.

Ethiopia's air force is composed of eight planes, used primarily for communication among the various armies.

Emperor Haile Selassie has refused permission to his warriors to forage in the vicinity of Addis, where an Italian expedition was crushed forty years ago.

Authoritative sources expressed belief to-day the "King of Kings," realizing Addis probably would be Italy's first goal, may decide not to defend it forcefully, but to use punitive surprise tactics elsewhere to offset probable loss of the 1896 battle-ground.

GUERRILLA WARFARE

Unconfirmed reports said the Italians would be allowed to take Addis and to advance into deep northern Ethiopia, but when they were far from their bases in unmapped country, the

Peiping, Aug. 8.—Gareth Jones, British news correspondent, whose release by his bandit kidnappers was reported previously and later denied, is now in the hands of another band, demanding $100,000, instead of the $40,000 asked by the first band, it was reported here to-day.

The Manchester Guardian correspondent, once secretary to former Prime Minister Lloyd George, is now being held somewhere along the frontier, between Chahar and Jehol provinces, according to the reports.

The $40,000 ransom, it was said, was paid two days ago, but Mr. Jones was not released.

He has been in the hands of bandits eleven days.

Provincial Finances Will Not Permit Assumption of $3,000,000 Extra Burden For Education, Although Principle Is Favored; Mayors and Trustees Give Views of Major H. B. King's Report

Until the financial position of the provincial government improves very materially, or new sources of taxation are given to it in a redistribution of powers between the federal and provincial governments, there is small likelihood of the financial proposals in Major Herbert B. King's report on school costs being implemented. This was the general belief in government circles to-day as the report,

Luigi Razza, on Way to Inspect Public Works Carried Out By Army Forces Sent to Region Near Ethiopia's Border, Victim of Accident

BRITISH PLANES AID IN SEARCH

Rome, Aug. 8.—Seven persons, including Luigi Razza, Italian Minister of Public Works, were killed in an airplane crash near Cairo yesterday evening, the Ministry of Propaganda announced to-night.

The other victims were two passengers and four members of the crew of the commercial plane, which was flying over the Egyptian desert, bound for Eritrea.

Earlier dispatches had told how British Royal Air Force planes had been ordered out in Egypt to look for the Italian plane.

Razza was on his way by airplane yesterday to Eritrea to conduct an inspection of the public works under construction there by expeditionary forces of Italy along the frontier of Ethiopia.

The ministry said Razza was traveling in an Italian commercial airplane with three other passengers and a crew of four when the ship suddenly nose-dived eight miles outside of Cairo.

RAZZA'S CAREER

Razza formerly was president of the Confederation of Fascist Agricultural Syndicates and was secretary-general of the Fascist corporations.

He rose to power in Italy as a leader in the Fascist Party. On August 18, 1925, he was wounded in a sabre duel at Milan. During the Great War he was decorated for bravery.

Razza was born December 12, 1882, at Vido Valentia, Italy.

As a journalist, he won fame as editor of Popolo d'Italia of Milan until 1919. Later he was editor-in-chief of the newspaper Liberta of Trento.

The Italian colony of Eritrea, where he was named the larger part of the army forces sent recently by Mussolini, borders Ethiopia.

Massau, to which the plane party was bound from Rome, is one of the colony's chief cities.

necessary to impose most of the extra levy on the lower brackets, because the doubling of the rates right up the line, apart from driving away those in receipt of large incomes, would reach the point where there would not be sufficient income to pay both the Dominion and provincial tax.

Major King himself recognizes this position in an appended note to his chapter on taxation, pointing out that increases in the Dominion tax on higher brackets preclude these as a source of added revenue, and he does not think enough could be collected from the small incomes.

SALES TAX

The sales tax would be the alternative, but Mr. King has already started a move to secure this levy as a provincial measure, and he has other purposes in mind than paying for education. Until the province can pay for such expenditures as unemployment relief, $4,500,000 annually, and its sinking funds, out of current revenue, there is little chance of its shouldering an additional $3,000,000 of costs for education.

Briefly the financial position of the province is this. Against roughly $22,000,000 revenue, debt charges amount to $12,000,000, relief $4,500,000 and civil service $4,500,000, or a total of $21,000,000, without starting on health and education costs and other services. It has been getting along by borrowing for relief and suspending part of the sinking fund payments. Financial experts could see no hope of it assuming $2,000,000 more in annual liabilities.

IDEA FAVORED

It is known, on the other hand, that opinion within the government is strongly in favor of the province assuming full responsibility for schools. In the same way that health is regarded as a purely municipal matter, but as a matter of practical business, such a change will probably have to wait for some years at least.

However, many of the other recommendations made by Major King will receive strong support, it is expected, especially those having to do with internal reorganization of the school system and matters of economy.

MINISTER'S STATEMENT

Dr. Weir, in a complimentary reference to the report to-day, said that the questions would have to be discussed both by the government and the Legislature.

"Major King's report is undoubtedly the most comprehensive document of its kind ever compiled in Canada," the minister said. "There are a number of controversial matters in it, of course, but many of these are based on factual research.

"The public should read the report with great interest. Many of the chapters are very authoritative. "Especially is this true of the chapter 'What They Think in England,' which quotes many of the leading authorities there.

Reports circulating in the capital said if the Italians advanced from Eritrea, Haile Selassie would drive into Italian Somaliland on the same day, counterbalancing any loss of territory. JAPANESE LEGATION

Tokyo, Aug. 6 (Associated Press).—An authoritative source indicated today Toshiharu Harima, first secretary of the Japanese embassy in Rome, has been designated to open a Japanese legation at Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, in January.

This source suggests Harima would be made charge d'affaires of the Ethiopian diplomatic mission.

It was officially stressed the plans for the Addis Ababa legation were not connected with the Italo-Ethiopian crisis.

An official said he did not know whether Ethiopia was preparing to open a legation in Tokyo.

MISSION TO JAPAN

Addis Ababa, Aug. 6.—Government plans for an Ethiopian mission to Japan, to leave Addis Ababa soon, were disclosed today.

The mission, it was said by Daba Birrou, former official of the Foreign Office, the purpose of the Ethiopian party will be kept a close secret.

TRUSTEES' OPINIONS

W. C. Moresby, chairman of the Victoria school board, declined comment on the King plan until he had had an opportunity of studying the printed report in full.

Referring to the report issued in yesterday's papers, he commented the story covered generalities only.

"It does not state what methods he intends to use to meet the various difficulties," Mr. Moresby said of the press dispatch.

"It appears to be a statement of general policy which might or might not be worked out. I want to know what he has to say about the high school course in Victoria, among other things."

"The compulsory four-year course would entail additional expense here," he said.

Mr. Moresby is now convalescing from an attack of tonsillitis.

"I believe the report of Major H. B. King, as reported in the press, contains the best solution of the school taxation problem and management of schools for this province. The idea of larger units will tend to greater economy and, as far as rural areas are concerned, better education," said G. E. Bonner of Cobble Hill, former chairman of the B.C. "Major King's recommendations are in line with sweeping changes that are going to be made in the administration of police and other social services. Education will have a higher standard than ever before."

NAVY YARD MEN IN FRANCE STAGE DEMONSTRATIONS

Post and Rogers Plane At Juneau

Pilot and Humorist Pause There, With Next Alaska Jump Uncertain

Associated Press
Juneau, Alaska, Aug. 6.—Wiley Post and Will Rogers mildly disagreed today over plans for resuming their flight over Alaska in Post's new red pontoon-equipped monoplane.

Post yearned for salmon fishing with light tackle.

Rogers urged a quick takeoff for Nome so he could "lasso a reindeer."

Inasmuch as weather forecasts were unfavorable, Rogers said he would compromise and "let Wiley do his fishing."

It was learned from Post that he considered visiting for a short time with Joe Croson, an aviator with whom the round-the-world flier became acquainted during the Alaskan part of his flight in the summers of 1931 and 1932.

Other cities of Alaska eagerly waiting word of the next destination of Post and Rogers, humorist and film actor, had to content themselves with speculation, for no definite information was forthcoming.

AT BANQUET

After Post and Rogers had arrived here yesterday afternoon from Seattle, a trip they made in 8 hours 15 minutes, they were entertained at a banquet given by Governor John W. Troy in the governor's mansion.

Rogers, making his first trip to Alaska, studied with interest a map of the territory and finally waving his hand.

"I guess Wiley and me'll have to flip a coin to see where we go next. Wiley's the very best man on this trip. He fills the gas tank and then we're off."

In response to questions about his trip, Post replied he had come to Juneau to see Croson, with whom he had hunted game in the interior last year. He reiterated his assertion he was "going to stay here until we get ready to take off for somewhere."

GOAL IS MOSCOW

Through several remarks, Rogers gave the impression that takeoffs and routes were matters which Post would decide and that Rogers was a passenger on the "pleasure jaunt," which for Post at least has its presumed destination at Moscow.

Mrs. Post, who had been expected to accompany her husband and Rogers, remained in Seattle. Whether she would come north by boat to join her husband on a flight over Siberia to Moscow could not be learned.

MRS. POST AT SEATTLE

Seattle, Aug. 6.—Mrs. Wiley Post disclosed today that she might not join her husband and Will Rogers in Alaska on their hunting and fishing trip there.

"I haven't made up my mind yet whether to join Wiley," she said, when asked about her own plans, "but I hardly think I will."

Steamship officials reported no reservations had been made for her.

Before leaving Los Angeles, Post announced he and Mrs. Post planned to hunt in Siberia and go on to Moscow, and at San Francisco he obtained passport permission to enter Russia. He was non-committal here about his plans.

Young Flier Well Ahead on Attempt At Mexico Record

GREETINGS FROM MAYOR
Kurtis is bearing with him greetings from Mayor David Leeming to the mayor of Tijuana.

FIVE YEARS' FLYING

He has already had five years' flying experience in his twenty years' life, and boasts 700 hours in the air to his credit. He holds two junior records, one established in 1931, when he flew from Los Angeles to New York in twenty-three and a half hours, and back in twenty-six hours; the other in 1932, when he set a world junior speed record of 125 miles per hour, which still stands, and is officially recognized by the Federation Internationale Aeronautique in Paris.

DELAYED AT TAKE-OFF

The young flier had originally intended to leave the Victoria airport this morning at 3.30 o'clock, but had trouble getting his engine started. He was impatient at the delay, because customs officials in Seattle had arranged to be on hand for clearance at 4.30 o'clock.

The engine was finally started after half an hour's delay, and after a brief warming up, Kurtis soared aloft in an attempt to set the first flying record having Victoria as its taking off place.

NEW PROHIBITION CAMPAIGN

Washington, Aug. 6 (Associated Press).—Declaring "Prohibition has failed," F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, today called a conference of state and national dry leaders to meet at Winona Lake, Ind., on August 26, 27 and 28 to plan a new offensive.

Cherbourg Staff Quits Work; Men March and Sing, Protesting Pay Cuts; French Line Passenger Ships Held Up By Strike

Paris, Aug. 6.—A new demonstration against pay cuts broke out today in the Cherbourg naval arsenal, where the workmen suddenly laid down their tools and started marching through the shipyards singing the communist hymn, "Internationale." Troops were held in readiness.

The naval shipyard workers at Toulon stopped work in mid-afternoon for a demonstration of "mourning with the Breton comrades."

The gates of the shipyard there were guarded to prevent the strikers leaving the arsenal until their regular quitting time.

LINEAS DELAYED

After a previous announcement that the French Line strike had been settled, the line's striking crews at Le Havre to-night rejected the settlement offered by the Ministry of Merchant Marine.

The sailors' refusal was announced when they learned by telephone that Premier Laval insisted they accept the 10 per cent pay cuts which caused them to go on strike last Saturday.

A delegation representing the strikers, which conferred here with William Bertrand, Minister of Merchant Marine, said it intended to win the men to a settlement on its return to Le Havre to-night.

BIG FUNERAL PROCESSION

Paris, Aug. 6.—Five thousand shipyard workers and their wives marched silently in a funeral procession in Brest to-day.

The workers wore blue overalls. Their wives had covered their heads with the traditional Breton caps. They followed the hearse which bore the body of one of their fellow workers, killed in Tuesday's riot.

Every reinforcement of mobile guards went to Brest as the striking shipyard workers tramped the two miles to the cemetery at the little village of Saint Marc.

The mourners bore wreaths of flowers. The only sign of the two days of disorders early in the week were red arm bands on some sleeves and cuts and bruises on some faces.

The arsenal workers at Brest have agreed to return to their jobs tomorrow.

Not a single gendarme or soldier was within sight of the cottage although squads of mobile guards waited in the woods beside the road.

ence here next autumn to discuss questions affecting the two countries and not yet settled, it was said here to-day.

The newspaper Yomiuri said diplomatic observers believed the government would ask for positive British co-operation in readjusting trade relations between Britain and Japan.

The Yomiuri pointed out Britain has an inexhaustible supply of natural resources and a large market, which Japan contends is closed to the outside world through the economic bloc, strengthened by the Ottawa and other conferences.

(Japan and Canada as present have boosted customs duties against each other pending negotiation over imports).

CONTRIBUTION TO PEACE
The newspaper feels this "exclusion" policy deals a fatal blow to the economic and commercial advance of Japan, which suffers from scanty natural resources and a surplus of population. Consequently, the Yomiuri said, have come the suggestions advanced by diplomatic observers that Britain remove economic barriers if it wishes to establish firm and friendly relations between the two countries, and thus make a substantial contribution to world peace.

Code of Ethics For Druggists Proposed

PRIMAIRY PHARMACIES
Drug stores should primarily be pharmacies and not novelty stores, Mr. Best said.

His resolution was that the council appoint a committee to draft a code to be presented to provincial associations for their approval. The Dominion body should exercise all its power to see that such a code was carried out, he said.

Dr. R. B. J. Stanbury, secretary of Toronto, told the convention of a code of ethics which had been drawn up at the Calgary convention. This code, he said, was adopted for one year by the Ontario College of Pharmacy, but had not received approval of other provincial bodies.

CODE ENUNCIATED
This code was read to the meeting by Mr. Best. It enunciated seventeen points on which the pharmacist pledged allegiance when he completed his preliminary studies.

It was decided this code would be presented to the council for consideration and revision, and might be used as the basis for the new code.

KING TO START WEST TOUR AUG. 19

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Aug. 6.—Scheduled to return this afternoon to his country home at Kingston, Mr. L. Mackenzie King plans to remain there until next Monday, when he will leave on his western Ontario tour. He will speak in Woodstock on the afternoon of August 13, Wingham on the evening of August 14, and at Springbank Park, near London, on the afternoon of August 15.

He will then return to Kingston and tentative plans call for his departure for western Canada on August 19.

Klondike Kate Goes Back North

Bend, Ore., Aug. 6.—"Klondike Kate" is going back as a married woman to the Yukon country, where she was the toast of gold miners as a dancing girl in the roaring '90s.

For two years she has been Mrs. John Mattson and for a decade she has been known in the Bend country as "Aunt Kate."

She left to-day for Alaska to join her husband, a placer miner, on an isolated creek 100 miles south of Dawson. They were married in Vancouver.

SCHOOL COSTS COULD BE CUT

Between $40,000 and $50,000 could be saved, he reports, by closing all schools with an average daily attendance of less than eight pupils and giving them instruction through correspondence courses. He lists ninety-four provincial schools in this class.

Wider use of school libraries for study periods to save other accommodation is another proposal. Similarly in high schools, study halls could be utilized more, saving the time of teachers.

A uniform system of accounting on which all school administrators can model their budgets would effect a wide saving, he believes.

Two of the three teacher-training institutions in the province could be closed without loss of efficiency, he states.

"The demand for teachers has fallen off because of the slowing-up of population increase, because young women teachers have not been marrying and because there has been no demand in other western provinces for graduates from British Columbia institutions," he declares.

By bringing the school health service and the provincial health services more closely together, savings could be made.

The junior high school system offers many avenues for economies through more efficient control.

Normal School cost—the government $13,736 over and above the fees received in 1933-34, the Victoria Normal cost $20,731 and the grant to the teacher-training department at the University was $8,900.

Enlargement of classes for the teaching of some subjects is another method of cutting costs.

By reducing the number of practical experiments which physics and chemistry students are required to make in their first years, savings could be made in equipment.

NEW KEYBOARD?
Adoption of a new keyboard for typewriters would speed up instruction, with resulting economies.

Sound curriculum revision will eliminate waste, he claims.

Cleaner Says
He Will Be King

L. P. Brosseau of Chicago
Heading For Paris to Be
Hitler of France

Associated Press

Oklahoma City, Aug. 8.—Manager of a Chicago cleaning plant just a short time ago, Louis "Phillipe" Brosseau announced here today that he has changed his name to Louis Philippe de Bourbon as a step toward restoring the French monarchy with himself on the throne.

De Bourbon maintains he is the grandson of Louis XVII, "the Lost Dauphin," who, he asserts, was smuggled to Canada for safety during the French revolution and reared under the name of Brosseau.

CLOSES UP SHOP

De Bourbon, here to help his son close out his own cleaning plant just before leaving for Paris, said he had intended to make the visit a quiet one, but since word of his plans somehow got out, he would go ahead and tell more.

Among other things, the elder Bourbon said: "We will go to Chicago this week-end, from there to New York to meet some royalists from France, and then to London, where our operations will become secret. That is where we shall get our bearings."

"Opposition? There may be a little fighting, but that will be a small item. We already have a majority in the senate. I will not have anybody to help me rule. I'll take blame for everything. I'll be to France what Hitler is to Germany, Mussolini to Italy, and Stalin to Russia."

No Early Russian Government Change

Montreal, Aug. 8.—Belief the present system of government in Russia will be permanent was expressed here yesterday evening by Sir Andrew McPhail, noted Canadian physician and professor in the medical faculty of McGill University. Sir Andrew returned a few days ago from a tour of Russia.

"The system, I think, is permanent, for it is operated by an aristocracy to which new members can only be admitted as into a privileged club," he said. "But this new aristocracy remembers what the old aristocracy forgot, that those outside must be well cared for and kept content."

Employment In Britain Grows

Total of Jobless Decreases to 1,972,941; Surprise in July

London, Aug. 7.—For the first time since before the crisis of 1931, Great Britain has got the number of registered unemployed below the 2,000,000 mark—an elusive goal at which the government has aimed annually.

Figures issued yesterday showed unemployed at 1,972,941, a decrease of 158,310 compared with July of last year. It is the lowest total since 1930. The improvement gives solid ground for satisfaction, the Minister of Labor declared in an accompanying statement, as seasonal factors usually bring about an increase in unemployment at this time of the year. These have been outweighed by more favorable influences, so the figures for July are exceptional in several respects.

The number of persons on the income list increased 20,000 during July to a new high level, and since September of 1931, they have increased by about a million.

Bridge Worker
Falls; Loses Life

Vancouver, Aug. 8.—Robert Williams, forty-year-old employee of the Harbor Board Engineering Department, was instantly killed yesterday when he fell twenty-five feet while working on the Granville Street Bridge. Williams was engaged in construction of a staircase from Granville Island to the bridge when he apparently overbalanced and fell to the ground, striking his head.

Scientists Say It May Be Possible to Store Individuals For Centuries, Then Thaw Them Out So They May Continue Living

Berkeley, Cal., Aug. 8.—The day may come soon, scientists say, when any man who wants to see what the world is like a hundred years from now may do so by simply going into a scientific laboratory, having himself frozen solid and put away with a tag indicating when he wishes to be thawed back to life.

This interesting possibility was discussed here today by Dr. Robert E. Cornish, Berkeley scientist, whose experiments last year in reviving dogs put to death clinically attracted wide attention.

Dr. Cornish commented enthusiastically on an experiment performed recently by Dr. Ralph Willard, Hollywood gland research specialist, in which a monkey was revived after being frozen stiff for three days.

Dr. Cornish said Dr. Willard's work "seems to be quite a remarkable achievement," and opened up great possibilities. "It has been known for years that you can take young fish, freeze them solid and then thaw them out, and they will recover entirely. He (Dr. Willard) is the first to do it with warm blooded animals."

"This experiment makes it possible to take a man of, say, forty years of age, inject sodium citrate into his blood, freeze him and put him away for a thousand years, as long as he is kept frozen cold to prevent any changes in the body. Then thaw him out and he would go on living."

He explained the sodium citrate was necessary to keep the blood from clotting, which, he said, is apparently the fatal thing when a person freezes to death. He also pointed out a frozen animal would have to be kept at a very low temperature to prevent any bodily changes, and that the thawing process must be done very slowly.

FRUIT PACKING
PLAN FOR JOBLESS

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 8.—Scheme to establish a farm colony which would engage in co-operative fruit and vegetable packing has been advanced by Reeve Ben Lever as a means of reducing unemployment in Sandwich East.

Mr. Lever believes certain subdivisions at present registered with the municipality could be divided into ten-acre lots and, with the aid of government-supplied materials, houses could be erected for use of the land-holders.

All produce could be packed and sold under a voluntary co-operative scheme, while even food, clothing and other necessities could be purchased under a co-operative plan.

A widow and two children survive him.

ONLY ELEVEN, BUT SENTENCED TO PRISON

George M. Snow, eleven years of age, sat on the witness stand in a crowded Wartburg, Tenn., courtroom, as shown above, and told how he had killed Johnny Holt, sixteen, with his knife after the boy had hit him three times with stones. A jury of farmers found the defendant guilty of voluntary manslaughter and he will serve five years in the state reformatory. George is the son of a well-to-do farmer and his victim was the son of a neighboring sharecropper.

Migration From Provinces
Caused By Nazi Drive to Be Halted

Berlin, Aug. 8.—An official Nazi announcement yesterday proclaimed that further measures would be taken to halt a stream of "undesirable elements," especially Jews, pouring into Berlin for refuge.

The announcement said the measures already had been drawn up by Count Wolf Hendrick von Helldorf, head of the Berlin police, and Julius Lippert, Nazi commissioner for Berlin, to stem the migration from the provinces—"greater than ever before."

No indication was given as to the precise nature of the steps to be taken.

Driven from all towns by the Nazi anti-Semitic campaign, the refugees seek protection in the city, saying they have no place else to turn unless they leave the Reich.

Despite a warning issued last week, the flow apparently persisted in such proportions that the city officials have decided to act.

Part of Germany

Vienna, Aug. 8.—Determination to oppose restoration of the Hapsburgs to the Austrian throne and to compel Austria to become a part of Germany was again expressed at a recent conference of Chancellor Hitler with Nazi leaders, according to the semi-official Weltblatt.

The Berlin correspondent of this Catholic paper declared in a dispatch yesterday that after the meeting, Reich Propaganda Minister Goebbels declared Austria was attempting "to carry out the policy of a great power."

The Reich propaganda minister was also quoted as saying a decision regarding Austria would soon be taken at Rome, but that the ultimate fate of the country would be decided in Berlin.

SIR T. A. CUBITT
TO VISIT CITY

Vancouver, Aug. 8.—Lieutenant-General Sir Thomas Astley Cubitt, K.C.B., Governor of Bermuda, and Lady Cubitt arrived here yesterday on a tour of western Canada, and intend to visit Victoria, Jasper Park and Alaska before returning home.

Sir Thomas is interested in Canada's tourist policy as tourists provide one of the chief industries of Bermuda.

"The possibilities for tourist business in western Canada," he said, "would appear to be unlimited. Development is most effectively fostered through government, since only through government can everybody's efforts be properly co-ordinated."

MILK BUSH IS TO BE PRUNED

New York Botanical Garden
Men Face Task Which Has Risks

New York, Aug. 8.—Gardeners in the New York Botanical Garden, the Bronx, were preparing today for their most distasteful job of the year. Next week they will give the thirty-foot African milk bush its annual pruning job, which results in painfully swollen hands and entails the risk of possible blindness should any of the sap of the plant fall into their eyes.

The pruning will be done by Patrick Connolly, in charge of Range 1, and John King, his assistant.

The milk bush, known scientifically as Euphorbia Tirucalli, is a native of Africa.

In the Dutch East Indies the natives take the sap of the tree and put it in some stream or pond. It is so toxic it kills any fish in the water and they float to the surface. Then the natives simply gather them in.

SUGAR AGREEMENT WILL BE ENDED

Brussels, Aug. 8.—The international sugar council decided yesterday the Chadbourne convention, which guarded against over-production of sugar by limitation of exports, will not be renewed when it expires September 1.

The decision against its renewal was made because of the severe competition from countries which do not adhere to the agreement.

SCHOOL FINANCE

IF THE RECOMMENDATIONS IN THE comprehensive report of Mr. H. B. King, technical adviser to the Weir-Hart Commission on School Finance, are carried out there will be a complete reorganization of the education system of the province in administration, finance, operation and consequent curricular readjustments. Necessarily these recommendations demand the careful study of not only the provincial and municipal authorities, but the general public which, in the final analysis, is the element most directly concerned.

In general, Mr. King proposes the absorption by the government of the cost of education within the province, as soon as possible, with the exception of interest and sinking fund charges now charged to the municipalities; that there should be a provincial tax of three to four mills upon all real property; that the personal property tax on non-municipal property be abolished.

It is recommended that revenue to enable the province to carry this additional burden be derived from an increase in the income tax of from one to two per cent upon all income now taxable, or from a sales tax, or from a combination of both.

It is proposed that school boards be abolished; that the province be divided into education areas approximating the present inspectorate divisions, each to be administered by a director under the Superintendent of Education. These changes should be adopted gradually, starting with the rural school districts in unorganized territory, and leaving to the organized municipalities the option of going into the new system whenever they deem it advisable to do so.

To prevent the intervention of political or other irrelevant influences in provincial administration, especially in appointments, the report proposes an Appointments Board of Education officials, while there should be an Interdepartmental Board of permanent officers representing the Department of Education, the Department of Public Works and possibly the Economic Council to deal with new buildings and other expenditures hitherto regarded as being of a capital nature. These safeguards would be vital, for the political machine would have to be excluded at all costs.

The saving to the municipalities, with taxation for school purposes on real property reduced to three mills, would be about $2,000,000; with the rate, at four mills it would be $1,400,000. Since the municipalities now pay about $5,000,000 in education costs, the provincial government would have to assume an additional obligation of $3,000,000. There is some doubt that this sum could be raised by an increase in the income tax of one to two per cent, even if the government were disposed to levy it, so Mr. King proposes as an alternative a sales tax or a combination of both.

These financial provisions, however, are subject to circumstances which at present are uncertain. The Minister of Finance so far has been indisposed to increase income taxation and probably is of that mind still. The power of the province to impose a sales tax has not been determined and the matter probably must rest until after the constitutional conference between the Dominion and provincial governments, which may not be held until next year.

The provincial revenue, of course, is likely to increase, but present provincial liabilities and needs, apart from education, are so heavy that this probably would be absorbed for general purposes, especially if the province assumed the entire cost of social services now partly borne by the municipalities. It would be impossible, therefore, for the province to engage in the whole scheme recommended by Mr. King until the situation in respect of increased provincial revenue sufficient to meet all demands was clarified, attractive though it may be in many aspects to the municipalities. This is fully appreciated by Mr. King, whose recommendations are designed for adoption in gradual stages.

In spite of the saving to municipalities estimated under the proposals there is bound to be criticism of the proposal to abolish the school boards from various quarters, especially in the urban centres. But it should necessarily follow that if the province assumed the major part of the cost of provincial education it should direct the agencies of administration. It is not proposed, however, to disconnect administration altogether from local interest. In each administrative area there would be a consultative body composed of competent persons chosen from some representative bodies who would advise the provincial director in regard to local matters.

The report itself is well worth studying, not only for the broad white light it sheds upon the education situation in this province and the aspects in which, in the opinion of the investigator, it can be modernized and otherwise improved, but also for the great amount of general information on matters educational it contains. However controversial may be some of its proposals, there can be no question that its compiler has done a difficult job extremely well.

A NEW CANADA-U.S. TRADE TREATY

FROM VARIOUS SOURCES COME REPORTS that negotiations for a reciprocal trade treaty between Canada and the United States are practically completed, while from other sources we are told that there is very little likelihood of their completion until after the general election has taken place.

Although it has dawned on the Ottawa government that conditions should be made more easy for the exchange of goods with our nearest neighbor—always assuming that our neighbor likewise wants to restore at least some of the large volume of trade which has almost evaporated since the two countries got into their tariff war—it is reasonable to suppose it will leave the job of completing the negotiations to its successor in office.

Canada, of course, is primarily interested in obtaining a reduction in tariffs on cattle, grain and forest products, the latter of especial interest to British Columbia. Although the quantity of cattle exported to the United States has increased in recent months, Canadians naturally would prefer to see a different treaty arrangement between the two countries covering this commodity. Similarly, Canadian lumber interests would like to see an increase in lumber exports to the United States. Were the tariff to be lowered to permit of easier entry, the bogey of the Soviet in the lumber market of Britain would look less fearsome to them.

To get the duty on lumber reduced, however, the stout opposition of the northwestern states would have to be overcome by concessions on the part of this country which would stiffen the attitude of the government at Washington against special service to sectional interests. As far as Canada is concerned, there is prospect of a more equitable trade agreement being negotiated by a government headed by Mr. King than one by Mr. Bennett.

What has got to be borne in mind in all these negotiations is that the trade between Canada and the United States five years ago was worth more than the whole of Canada's external trade at the present time. This is the explanation of much of this country's unemployment, and, proportionately, that of our neighbor.

The oft-repeated argument that there should be a treaty which would balance the trade between the two countries, of course, should not be taken seriously. It is a case of business between 11,000,000 and 130,000,000! Not since 1872 has Canada been on the credit side, and since that time, when the trade was worth only $66,000,000, the ratio of this country's debt has varied but very little, no matter what government has been in office at Ottawa. The adverse balance now bears practically the same percentage as it has done for the last half century; but the tragedy of it is, that the whole exchange is worth only $533,000,000 compared with nearly $1,365,000,000 five years ago!

NO MORE DICTATORSHIP FOR CANADA

WHEN RT. HON. W. L. MACKENZIE King, leader of the Liberal Party of Canada, says that dictatorship will end in this country on the election of a government over which he will preside—as he said at Kingston last night—he assures the public that Liberalism is its sure shield against Fascism, Hitlerism and Communism. His party will not tolerate bureaucracy or dictatorship in any form; its battle cry during the coming election campaign will be the restoration of responsible government and the full restoration of civil liberties which, after all, form the essence of real democracy.

In his Kingston speech yesterday, Mr. King suggested that Canadians ask themselves if they wanted their country to become a second Italy, a second Germany, or a second Russia. There is nothing fantastic about the inquiry Mr. King advocates, in the light of the record of the Bennett government during the last five years. That record includes the famous "blank cheque" legislation which took away from Parliament the right to name the sum to be appropriated for relief purposes from time to time—a procedure which was not relinquished even in the war years of two decades ago—and vested complete authority in the Prime Minister and his cabinet. Here are Fascist-Nazi-Communist principles rolled into one. The sequel has been relief camps and the dole.

A similar autocratic course was the making of tariffs by executive action only. During the early days of the Bennett regime we had several glaring instances of the boomerang effect of unconstrained tariff boosting. The famous glass duty directed against Belgium to protect a small glass factory in eastern Canada would have lost the Dominion a market for wheat worth several millions of dollars had the order not been promptly rescinded after the cabinet had been informed of the economic stupidity of its action.

Then a potato duty was imposed against certain seed potatoes—not potatoes for market—from the southern states, which had to be removed because it would have ruined a lucrative business which the Maritime Provinces were doing with our neighbor. The increase in the duty against New Zealand butter, of course, was a notorious case of sheer short-sightedness. This had the effect of cutting an annual business of approximately $36,000,000 to $5,000,000. Recognizing the seriousness of a trading situation which found Canada treated by New Zealand on the same basis as a foreign country, the government was compelled to enter into negotiations for a new treaty. Yet with that agreement in operation, and under the treaties of the Ottawa conference of 1932, the value of Canada's trade with New Zealand is less than a fraction of what it was four years ago. Markets may be lost easily; they are difficult to regain.

Thus in these three cases in which Parliament has been ignored in the consideration and determination of vitally important matters, the Dominion has suffered grave consequences. And there are other cases, such, for instance, as the guarantee of bonds and other subventions to private corporations amounting to many millions.

Mr. King asks the people whether they want this sort of thing to continue for another five years, the consequences of which can be better imagined, than described, or whether they want the sort of government they had between 1921 and 1930, the sort of government which materially helped to bring about prosperity and contentment in Canada.

THE CUB REPORTER DAYS
 Sometimes I hear them questioning:
 "Did dad give you a diamond ring
 Before you married him and what
 Was it at Christmas time you got
 Of silver, platinum or fur?"
 And thinking what my present were
 In those old courtship days, I say:
 "Not on a cub reporter's pay!"

"When I your mother's love pursued,
 'Twas not with costly gifts I wooed,
 We rode to town on trolley cars;
 I bought her five-cent cigars;
 At times I played the English lute
 When I a carriage could afford;
 But gifts are few and far away
 When on a cub reporter's pay."

"A very cheap and simple thing
 She wore as an engagement ring.
 You youngsters seem to think, somehow,
 The days have always been as now;
 But in those early years we spent
 But little save for food and rent.
 There's nothing left for vain display
 When on a cub reporter's pay."

Concerning pogroms and the menace of lions at our lake—When a birthday party is in progress—And the embargo on the sale of the fat frog.
 By BRUCE HUTCHISON

SERIOUS THINGS

IN THESE grave times, a column of this sort, you will agree, should be devoted to serious things like the federal election, but the fact is, confidentially, that I have sneaked out on the election and the problems of civilization generally, in order to buy a gun. I do not mean a gun in the military sense, nor a gun with which to shoot dangerous animals like our native deer in what is known as sport, a term which might, with equal accuracy, be applied to the present killing of Jews in Germany or the approaching slaughter of Conservatives. I mean a popgun.

You may think it is an easy thing to buy a popgun. You may remember the good old days when you could buy a popgun at every toy counter. But try it to-day and you will see that times have changed. The peace movement has swept the civilized world like a wave and even appalled on these distant shores. Disarmament is a fact. You can hardly buy a popgun in all Victoria. I had to go to five stores before I could find a popgun and then what do you suppose they offered me? A popgun which merely popped, which I called "no misdeeds, which did not shoot out the essential piece of cork tied to a string. The man in the store said that nowadays it was considered too dangerous to sell popguns that actually ejected a cork, actually did anything at all but pop. This, I thought, was carrying the peace movement and the urge to disarmament a bit too far.

Finally, after a long search, he managed to dig me up a dusty popgun that had been in stock since the olden times before the world disarmed. It popped and ejected a cork all right, with a considerable violence. I needed a gun with power in it, you understand, because the little boy from next door was going to shoot lions with it, up at our lake.

BIRTHDAY

THIS BRINGS me to the crux of the day's business. There was a birthday party up at our lake yesterday. Not the little boy's, but his sister's. However, it was the birthday of a girl, not a boy, and she is not altogether neglected, or there is likely to be hard feeling and sanguinary violence. So, while his sister was the recipient of many charming presents, as the society columns say, it was necessary to give him a popgun, particularly as he tells me that the lions are becoming a serious menace up at our lake and must be shot off before they can do any more damage.

The proceedings at the birthday party started calmly enough, there being only six participants, or rather only four active ones, because Armand and Dickie, being thirteen and ten respectively, did not care to enter a children's party with abandon but, remembering their ages, took part with dignity; that is, until the food was served. Their dignity disappeared then with suddenness and considerable noise, and so did the ice cream. Since the yellow cake, containing seven yellow candles, was known to contain also a dime, a nickel and the contents of a whole hardware shop in the way of tiny horseshoes, wedding rings and other charms, it was removed as with a steam shovel.

ATHLETE

IT MUST have been embarrassing, however, for an athletic young man like Dickie to extrude the wedding ring, a sure sign of approaching matrimony; for a young man like Dickie has no interest in love and considers it a symptom of decadence, for it was only last week that, in the words of the little boy next door, "Dickie swammed so fast at the 'gaita' they had to give him a funny thing." Which, being interpreted, means that he won a swimming race at the regatta (I have heard it said by his scurrilous

SUNSHINE CAMP

To the Editor:—In reference to the recent letters on the subject of the reducing of the relief allowances by 25 per cent of the mothers who went to Sunshine Camp, and the statement of the City Council of the reason for doing it, I would urge these considerations against the justice of this decision:

1. We must necessarily conclude, those who had the opportunity of going to the camp, were chosen because they could have no holiday otherwise, and were badly in need of rest and change. Some on relief have friends and relatives to whom to go; others have none, so circumstances vary in degree even for those dependent on relief. Concluding this is so, these people need that little extra, which means so much to them, whereas the taxpayers will not feel the benefit of such a sum.

2. And then the funds were raised in good faith to help these people, as Mr. Joe North asserted, with no such conditions attached. If any mother volunteers to give up this 25 per cent because she prefers to see it otherwise, all honor to her. Otherwise, we have not less petty ways of saving the taxpayer's pocket.

3. Most necessarily conclude, in face of all this, that Mayor David Leeming and the aldermen who attended the municipalities convention at Harrison Hot Springs were of course paying their own expenses—if not, perhaps, Joe North, will step into the breach and collect the money from the taxpayers who are (vainly in many cases) trying to pay their way.

CUMBERLAND MINERS

To the Editor:—Five hundred workers of the Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir Limited) have been locked out in Cumberland.

They have refused to accept the contract system which the management has attempted to force upon them.

It is a known fact that contract system means speed-up and indirect wage-cut. It also opens an avenue of discrimination whereby many old-timers in the mines would be forced out.

When attempting to start the contract system the management ignored the pit committee. It attempted in an underhand manner to disrupt the union by negotiating the wage scale to be paid with an individual worker.

On Monday, August 5, the grievance committee called a pit-head meeting. They found the only course open was to call a special union meeting the following afternoon.

The miners attended the union meeting 100 per cent strong and decided to turn down the contract system. The miners are willing to work under the system which the agreement calls for.

The reason given for this lockout was clause 12 of the agreement, which reads that work will not be stopped while a dispute is being adjusted between the men and the company.

As nothing could be found out by inquiries prior to Monday, August 5, when this system was introduced, the men had no other course than to take a day off to discuss it as it was forced upon them without notice.

The men are standing 100 per cent strong and developments are expected at any time.

BIBLE SCHOOL STARTS HERE

Enrolment of Eighty-five Children Reported For Study

Children of the Fernwood district have registered up to the number of eighty-five for the Daily Vacation Bible School at the Emmanuel Baptist Church.

The children, ranging from four to twelve years, attend the classes each morning, starting at 9 o'clock. Mrs. Maude Hammond is general director of the institution and is aided in her work by several assistants.

The daily schedule includes songs, hymns, Bible study and worship discussions on the theme of the school which is "Building a Friendly City," play periods and handwork. During the handwork period, the girls are learning the art of decorating vases, while the boys are very fortunate in having Mr. Aitken so teach them how to make small models in woodcraft. This week's work will conclude with a service of worship to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock, to which all parents and friends in the community are invited. This service will be held in the church auditorium, with Jan Galliford presiding at the organ. At the conclusion there will be a display of the week's work.

SALVATIONISTS TAG SATURDAY

Army to Appeal on Annual "Babies' Day" For Rescue Work

Seventy years ago William Booth stood on Mile End waste alone, determined to do something for the "out-cast and forgotten" in London's slums. The fruit of the effort is now represented in the world-wide work of the Salvation Army, so that now, wherever there is sin and misery, poverty and despair, pain and discouragement; wherever there are men who are down and out, women who have erred, little children who are defenceless, there will be found the Salvation Army with its message of hope and cheer.

Last year over 700 girls were cared for in the Army's rescue homes in western Canada, over 500 being passed out as satisfactory. The percentage of successful rescue cases in the west is high indeed, as out of the hundreds of girls receive annually, the records show that 87 per cent are redeemed and restored to lives of right living and respectability.

The annual tag day, better known as "Babies' Day," will be held on Saturday to help along this work of social and moral uplift in British Columbia.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

MONDAY, AUGUST 8, 1910

(From The Times Files)

With six double figure scores for seven wickets down the Victoria club eleven on Saturday afternoon defeated Burrard by three wickets and exactly 200 runs.

The provincial tennis honors were played out on Saturday afternoon at the courts of the Victoria Tennis Club. The men's singles, the ladies' singles and the ladies' doubles came to Victoria, while the mixed doubles and the men's doubles go to other players. The mixed was won by Joe Tyler of Japan and Miss Hobson of Vancouver and the men's doubles go to Tyler and McKee of Victoria.

This evening's meeting of the City Council should prove more than usually important and interesting. The city clerk will report the resignation of Alderman Humber and it is probable that there will be some reference to the situation which has developed respecting the city engineer, who on Saturday had an intimation conveyed to him that his resignation would be welcomed by the mayor and council.

There has been another clash between the civic authorities and the Pacific Coast Construction Company which has the contract for certain cement sidewalk work. Walks on portions of Quadra Street and Caladonia Avenue are now being laid by the company. This morning J. Stedham received notification from the city engineer's department that the width of the curbs would require to be changed.

James I. Raymur, water commissioner, is making arrangements for the excursion trip to Goldstream on Saturday next by the members of the citizens' water committee, who will inspect the holdings of the Esquimalt Waterworks, so as to be in a position to judge their value in connection with the proposal to acquire the same either by direct purchase or by expropriation.

Antique Hunting Is Indoor Sport

An article recently published in the Los Angeles Evening Herald and Express about Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Norton, who during their residence in Los Angeles were numbered among the most popular couples of the city's younger married set, now residing in Victoria, highly praises this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Norton came to Victoria this spring to take up residence here. Mr. Norton (Jack) was transferred by his firm to take charge of this territory as resident manager. He and Mrs. Norton (Ver) are quite charmed with their new home.

Here is how the Evening Herald and Express describes Manor Mansion, the Nortons' Victoria home: "Manor Mansion is the very imposing name of the house—or rather estate, if we remember our Victoria as well as we think we do—which Jack and Vera have taken. And it is on Manor Road, no less, which is, indeed, typical of that delightful section—Victoria being famed as the most English town in all Canada.

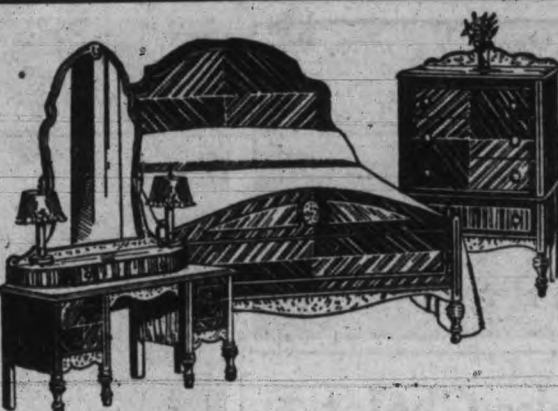

Vera in her letter says: "We've taken an amazing place, an old mansion built high on the rocks overlooking most of the island," and then she continues with news that will simply make hunters green with envy. "The pheasants and grouse wander around outside our windows when Mikki, our moist-nosed emotional-eared cocker spaniel isn't chasing them."

Then Vera goes on to tell of several delightful excursions she and Jack, in company with charming people that they have met, have made. "But antique hunting is the great indoor sport up here," Vera adds, "and I'm having great fun acquiring the odd bits, although, we regular residents are taking time out now to give the crowd of summer tourists an opportunity to have their fill."

LAKE AND MOUNTAIN SCENERY ON VANCOUVER ISLAND

Cameron Lake Chalet Is Delightful Resort

Situated on Cameron Lake in Heart of Hills

"Come where the invigorating breeze is blowing. Where there is laughter in every brooklet flowing. Where there is more of reaping and less of sowing. That is where life begins."

This delightful bit of sentiment appears on a folder describing one of the best-known summer resorts on Vancouver Island. Doesn't it tempt one to go exploring—to forget all the worries and trials of everyday life and to hurry away to the hills? It is to the hills one must go to find this resort—far up into the hills on the long road to Alberni. The winding highway will beckon and the sighing of the tall trees will call. The vacation seeker will go on and on until he finds Cameron Lake, one of the gems of Vancouver Island, just fourteen miles north of Parksville. Then a short turn to the right brings one up to Cameron Lake Chalet, cradled in a fold of the hills, 600 feet above sea level.

DELIGHTFUL CHALET
The Chalet is a typical mountain hostelry, cosy and comfortable, overlooking the lake. Here one can fish, bathe, boat, picnic and lounge. No noise to disturb the restfulness of Nature. The rooms are comfortable and clean, more like private guest suites than anything else. The lounge is cheery and bright, with soft chairs and Chesterfields drawn up before a huge fireplace, to tempt those weary from healthy hours in the great outdoors. Mr. George Woollett, the manager of the Chalet, is a very well known up and down the Pacific coast. Before taking over the present management he was chief steward with the C.P.R. coastal service for forty-six years. His great experience in serving the public and his knowledge of just what makes for a perfect holiday, is helping him to make many new friends at the Chalet. Mrs. Woollett is assisting in the management and personally presides over all dining-room arrangements, thus assuring all guests the pleasure of perfectly cooked and served meals. The Chalet is easily accessible to all, not only by road but by train, which passes right by the grounds and stops at the very door.

Cameron Lake is one of the most beautiful lakes on Vancouver Island. The motor road winds down to meet it through a wilderness of tall green trees and giant boulders, then bursts suddenly from among the woods and runs down to the very edge of a shingle beach along the shore of the lake. Across the deep blue waters mountains rise straight from the shore, casting mirrored shadows of their mighty peaks in the still waters. Quick changing lights and shadows play over Cameron Lake from minute to minute. Visitors watching these changing colors for the first time are held enthralled for the reflections of sky, foliage and walls of rock vary so rapidly they defy description.

MANY SPORTS

The lake forms the headwaters of Little Qualicum River and fishing is excellent. Fishermen know Cameron Lake and come from far and near to fish its waters and the adjacent pools of the river. For hikers, there are many fascinating trails to follow. A wide, well-trodden path to the beautiful Little Qualicum Falls, and the more ambitious trail to the top of Mount Arrowsmith, with an elevation of 5,975 feet, being popular to all who love the thrill of the climb. Then too, there is the still beauty and peace of Cathedral Grove, or as it is better known "The Tall Timbers." Just beyond the north end of Cameron Lake stands this famous glade of giant trees. Here the natural park-like forest stands untouched by the depredations of the ax, the cedar trunks of fir, spruce, hemlock and cedar rising in some cases more than 200 feet. A beauty that is of the strength of the deep woods.

For complete rest of mind and body that is so needed in these strenuous times, no place can compare with Cameron Lake and the beauties of its surrounding hills. Here one gets the smell of the pine and the fresh mountain air. Refreshing and exhilarating. The Cameron Lake Chalet completes the picture... that of perfection and beauty and the thrill of a perfect holiday. To the very words of its own delightful little folder... this is "where life begins."

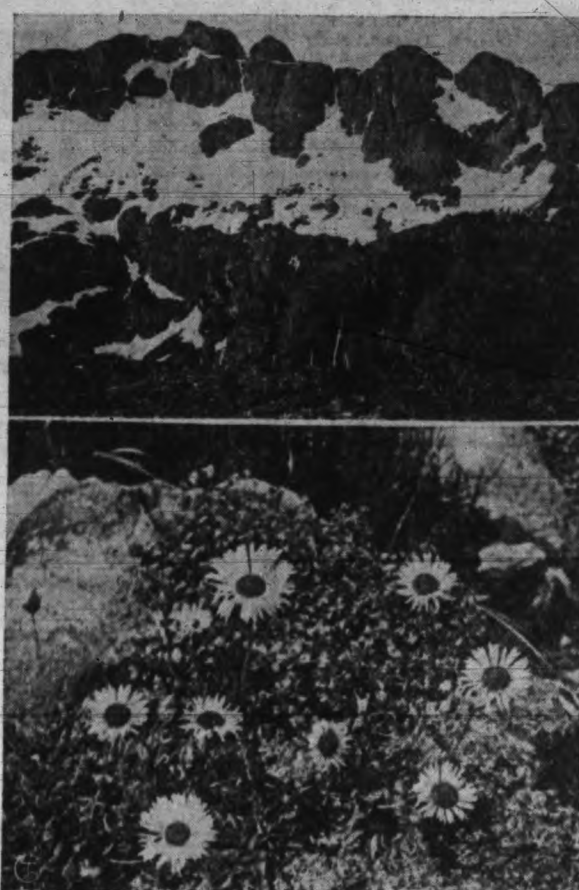

MOONLIGHT CRUISE FEATURED

A refreshing cruise aboard the ferry Cy Peck by moonlight through the Gulf Islands is being featured for Saturday night next by the Vancouver Island Coach Lines. Special coaches leave the Broughton Street Depot at 8 o'clock in the evening, to drive through the gathering dusk along the Saanich Peninsula to Swartz Bay, whence the ferry leaves on its two-hour cruise on the sheltered seas of the Gulf of Georgia. Entertainment and music is being provided aboard the ferry—and an enjoyable night is assured for all.

On Saturday also, a special excursion is being run to Friday Harbor. Coaches leave at 9 o'clock in the morning to connect with the ferry to this attractive resort in the American Gulf Islands.

Another popular mystery trip is being offered on Sunday. Passengers leave the Victoria depot at 10 o'clock in the morning, and after a drive through glorious scenery, arrive at the unknown destination where, it is revealed, is a good hotel, a fine beach and excellent swimming.

Newcastle Island, that popular island resort near Nanaimo, Qualicum Beach, Jordan River, Shawnigan Lake, Sooke Harbor and the new Goldstream Park, are all termini of excursions leaving Victoria on Sunday.

Above is a view of Mount Arrowsmith overlooking Cameron Lake, around whose rocky peak grow a profusion of beautiful flowers, one of which, the mountain fleabane, is shown below.

The Arctic Studio For Indian Craft

The Arctic Studio in the Belmont Building, 614 Humboldt Street, is a shop that interests all who visit Victoria. Within its wide spacious quarters one feels an influence... a clear, cool breath from the great northland. Among its many and varied curios, there is presented a memory of the long ago days of the trail of '98... and of fierce Indian tribes who roamed British Columbia long before a white man set foot upon its shores.

Established years ago in Dawson City by Morte H. Craig, a pioneer of those far off adventurous days, the Studio grew rapidly. Mr. Craig through his many associations in the north collected and preserved only authentic pieces of early hand craft. Nothing was too hard to find or too difficult to acquire. Now, in Victoria, Mr. Craig's grandson—Duncan McTavish, Jr., carries on the tradition. Within the Arctic Studio can be found only authentic pieces of Indian hand craft. Some of it is becoming increasingly hard to acquire... the black slate work of the Haida on Queen Charlotte Island and the basket weaving from the Aleutians being considered among the most rare. Then too, there are the fire etchings, worked on hand tanned unborn caribou skins... an art now extinct and only to be found within the doors of the Studio.

The Arctic Studio although a curio shop is more essentially a museum of Indian handicraft. Visitors to Victoria should assuredly make a point of visiting it while they are here.

The Hobbies Shop Interests Collectors

Give a man a hobby and he will be happy... This is a well-known truth and many people have benefited by it. It has remained for a little grey haired lady with a magnetic personality and bright snapping blue eyes to capitalize on this knowledge. She has built on the Island Highway at the Goldstream-Crowood, not far from Victoria, a very jewel of a little house, that holds within its four walls many things that are precious. The Hobbies Shop is a unusual little place, essentially for those who are interested in a hobby. Mrs. McVicker, the smiling proprietress has gathered together under her roof many interesting things that would form the nucleus of a hobby. Old books, old china, stamps, Indian work, these are but a few of the things to be found here. So many things there are, it is rather bewildering to believe there are so many hobbies. There is a collection of old bottles that should make some happy. Bits of tiny bottles with funny necks, medium sized bottles of strangely blended colors, and big overgrown bottles with bulbous sides. There is pewter and glass and even a collection of ancient shaving mugs that date back to the days of mutton chop whiskers and sideburns.

Visitors to Victoria who love old things, who have collected or who wish to collect... anything from a postage stamp to an old sampler, should visit the Hobbies Shop and talk for a while to Mrs. McVicker. In this little house are many things of interest not only to look at, but to acquire for a collection.

Pirates of Venus

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Copyright, 1935

As I stepped out onto the main deck, the solar rose upon the crest of a great wave and then plunged nose downward into the watery abyss beyond, tilting the deck forward at an angle of almost forty-five degrees. The wet and slippery boards beneath my feet gave them no hold, and I slid helplessly forward almost fifty feet before I could check my descent. Then the ship lurched her nose in a mountainous wave and a great wall of water swept the deck from stern to stern, picking me up and whirling me helplessly upon its crest.

For a moment I was submerged, and then a vagary of the Titan that had seized me brought my head above the water, and I saw the solar rolling and pitching fifty feet away. Even in the immensity of interstellar space I had never felt more helpless nor more hopeless than I did at that moment on the sun-lashed sea of an unknown world, surrounded by darkness and chaos and what terrible creatures of this mysterious deep I could not even guess. I was lost! Even if my comrades knew of the disaster that had overwhelmed me, they were helpless to give me aid. No boat could live in that sea, as Kiron had truly reminded me, and no swimmer could breast the terrific onslaught of those racing, wind-driven mountains of water that might no longer be described by so puny a word as wave.

Hopeless! I should not have said that. I am never without hope. If I could not swim against the sea, perhaps I would swim with it; and at no great distance lay land. I am an experienced distance swimmer and a powerful man. If any man could survive in such a sea, I knew that I could; but I could not. I was determined that I should not let have the satisfaction of dying fighting.

I was hampered by no clothes, as one could scarcely dignify an Antoria leoncloth with the name of clothing; my only impediment was my weapons; and these I hesitated to discard, knowing that my chances for survival on that unfriendly shore would be slight if I unarmed. Neither the belt, nor the pistol, nor the dagger inconvenienced me, and their weight was negligible; but the sword was a different matter. If you have never tried swimming with a sword dangling from your middle, do not tempt it in a heavy downpour. You might think that it would hang straight down and not get in the way, but mine did not. The great waves hurled me about mercilessly, twisting and turning me, and now my sword was buffeting me in some tender spot, and now it was getting between my legs, and once, it came down on top of me and struck me on the head; yet I would not discard it.

After the first few minutes of battling with the sea, I concluded that I was in no immediate danger of being drowned. I could keep my head above the waves often enough and long enough to insure sufficient air for my lungs; and, the water being warm, I was in no danger of being chilled to exhaustion, as so often occurs when men are thrown into cold seas. Therefore, as closely as I could anticipate any contingency in this unfamiliar world, there remained but two major and immediate threats against my life. The first lay in the possibility of attack by some ferocious monster of the Antorian deep; the second, and by far the more serious, the storm-lashed shore upon which I must presently attempt to make a safe landing.

This in itself should have been sufficient to dishearten me, for I had seen seas breaking upon too many shores to lightly ignore the menace of those incalculable tons of hurtling waters pounding, crashing, tearing their way even into the rocky heart of the eternal hills.

I swam slowly in the direction of the shore, which fortunately for me, was in the direction that the storm was carrying me. I had no mind to sap my strength by unnecessarily over exerting myself; and so, as I took it easily, content to keep myself afloat, I moved slowly shoreward, daylight came, and as each succeeding wave lifted me to its summit, I saw the shore with increasing clearness. It lay about a mile from me, and its aspect was most forbidding. Huge combers were breaking upon a rocky coast line, throwing boiling fountains of white spume high in air; above the howling of the tempest, the thunder of the sun rolled menacingly across that mile of angry sea to warn me that death lay waiting to embrace me at the threshold of safety.

I was in a quandary. Death lay all about me; it remained but for me to choose the place and manner of my annihilation; I could drown where I was, or I could permit myself to be dashed to pieces on the rocks. Neither eventually aroused considerable enthusiasm in my breast. As a mistress, death seemed sadly lacking in many essentials. Therefore, I decided not to die.

Thoughts may be, as has been said, things; but they are not everything. No matter how favorably I thought of living, I knew that I must also do something about it. My present situation offered me no chance of salvation; the shore alone could give me life; so I struck out for the shore. As I drew nearer it, many things, some of them quite irrelevant, passed through my mind; but some were relevant, among them the burial service. It was not a nice time to think of this, but then we cannot always control our thoughts; however, in the midst of life we are in death, seemed wholly appropriate to my situation. By twisting it a bit, I achieved something that contained the germ of hope—in the midst of death there is life. Perhaps—

The tall waves, lifting me high, afforded me for brief instants vantage points from which I could view the death ahead in the midst of which I sought life. The shore line of jagged rocks and white water, but details were lacking, for each time I was allowed but a brief glimpse before being dropped once more to the bottom of a watery chasm.

My own efforts, coupled with the fury of the gale driving me shoreward, brought me rapidly to the point where I should presently be seized by the infuriated seas and hurled upon the bombarded rocks that reared their jagged heads bleakly above the swirling waters of each receding comber.

A great wave lifted me upon its crest and carried me forward—the end had come! With the speed of a race horse I swept me toward my doom; a welter of spume engulfed my head; I was twisted and turned as a cork in a whirlpool; yet I struggled to lift my mouth above the surface for an occasional gasp of air. I fought to live for a brief moment longer, that I might not be dead when I was dashed by the merciless sea against the merciless rocks—thus dominating the urge to live.

I was carried on; moments seemed eternity! Where were the rocks? I almost yearned for them now to end the bitterness of my futile struggle. I thought of my mother and of Duare. I even contemplated, with something akin to philosophic calm, the strangeness of my end. In that other world I had left forever no creature would ever have the knowledge of my fate. Thus spoke the eternal egotism of man, who, even in death, desires an audience.

Now I caught a brief glimpse of rocks. They were upon my left! When they should have been in front of me. It was incomprehensible. The wave tore on, carrying me with it; and still I lived, and there was only water against my naked flesh.

Now the fury of the sea abated. I rose to the crest of a diminishing comber to look with astonishment upon the comparatively still waters of an inlet. I had been carried through the rocky gateway of a landlocked cove, and before me I saw a sandy crescent beach. I had escaped the black fingers of death; I had been the beneficiary of a miracle! I felt that the sea gave me a final fling that mingled me high upon the sands to mingle with the wreck and flotsam she had discarded. I stood up and looked about me. A more devout man would have given thanks, but I felt that as yet I had little for which to give thanks. My life had been spared temporarily, but Duare was still in peril.

The cove into which I had been swept was formed by the mouth of a canyon that ran inland between low hills, the sides and summits of which were dotted with small trees. No grove in Vepal; but perhaps, I mused, what I see here are not trees on Venus but merely underbrush. However, I shall call them trees, since many of them were from fifty to eighty feet in height.

A little river tumbled down the canyon's bottom to empty into the cove; pale violet grass, starred with blue and purple flowers, bordered it and clothed the hills. There were trees with red boles, smooth and glossy as lacquer. There were trees with azure boles. Whipping in the gale was the same verdant foliage of heliotropes and lavender and violet that had rendered the forests of Vepal so unearthly to my eyes. But beautiful and unusual as was the scene, it could not claim my undivided attention. A strange fear of fate had thrown me upon this shore to which I had reason to believe, Duare must undoubtedly have been carried; and now my only thought was to take advantage of this fortunate circumstance and attempt to find and succor her.

CHAPTER XXXIV

I could only assume that in the event Duare's abduction had brought to this shore their landing must have been made farther along the coast to my right, which was the direction from which the solar had been moving. With only this slight and unsatisfactory clue, I started immediately to scale the side of the canyon and commence my search.

At the summit I paused a moment to survey the surrounding country and get my bearings. Before me stretched a rolling table-land, tree-dotted and lush with grass, and beyond that, inland, rose a range of mountains, vague and mysterious along the distant horizon. My course lay to the east, along the coast. I shall use the earthly references to points of the compass; the mountains were northward, toward the equator. I am assuming of course that I am in the southern hemisphere of the solar; there she was, far out moving toward the east. Evidently my orders were being carried out, and the solar was lying off shore waiting for calm weather that would permit a landing.

Princess Pearl Becomes Bride

Rajah of Sarawak's Daughter Wed in London; Search for Unhappy Queen's Poems

London Special Correspondence

Princess Pearl of Sarawak, or Miss Elizabeth Brooke as she is otherwise known, was married to Mr. Harry Roy, London's famous dance band leader recently.

Unfortunately pressure of work forced her father the White Rajah, to sail back to Sarawak—and so he was not present at her wedding. Her mother, however, remained.

Although she had a Register Office ceremony, she wore all white. Her frock, ankle-length and very simple, was of heavy white silk woven with an intricate pattern. She wore a halo-brimmed white felt and white kid gloves.

The honeymoon was spent at Jassies-Park on the Riviera—until after a fortnight there in the sun the princess and her husband went on tour with his band in Scotland.

Princess Pearl is especially popular in Sarawak where she has spent much of her time.

Books, music and the cinema—with games in moderation—have until now been the main interests in her life.

She has nearly finished a novel but is shortly to try her hand at film work for she and Mr. Roy are at present in a British musical film if screen tests are successful.

MOTHER WRITES SCENARIO

In the meantime, her mother, the Ramee, is working on the scenario of a film of the life of Sir James Brooke, the first Rajah who died in 1868.

It was he who conceived the idea of suppressing piracy in the Malay archipelago.

On inheriting £30,000 from his father, he bought a yacht and sailed for Borneo.

Finding the Sultan of Sarawak at war with some tribes he volunteered his services and after two years quelled the rebellion.

In gratitude the Sultan conferred on him the title of Rajah and Governor of Sarawak. This title has been handed down from father to son but as the present Rajah has no sons it will go to the Tuan Muda, the Rajah's brother.

SEARCH FOR QUEEN'S POEMS

Lost poems written by one of history's most tragic queens—Mary Queen of Scots, widowed at the age of eighteen and beheaded by order of Queen Elizabeth of England at the age of forty-five—are to be sought for as a result of a woman's curious legacy.

This woman, the late Miss Alice A. Pelaw, was a keen student of the life of the unhappy queen.

Now at the request of her executors, the Scottish University of St. Andrews is to administer a fund set apart by her for the award of money to the finder of the missing verses (fourteen stanzas) written by the queen.

Themes are thought to be the Queen's "Quatrains to Her Son" ("Tetrasticha Ou Quatrains A Son Filis").

In a catalogue of books drawn up in 1625 this work appears under the name of Mary. Since then it has disappeared.

If it could be found, it would be of the greatest interest to historical and literary students. The advice given in the verses to her son, later James I of England would help to illuminate his character.

SHE HAD 19,000 DRESSES

A woman who had 19,000 dresses, thousands of shoes and trunks of silk stockings has been the subject of a lecture given at Sir Philip Sassoon's house in London in connection with the Russian Art Exhibition now being held.

She was an eighteenth century Russian Empress—Elizabeth daughter of Peter the Great—beautiful, clever and extravagant.

From being an indolent princess, she became a powerful empress. Her strong rule appeared an amazing contradiction to the frivolous and intensely feminine monarch herself.

She never wore the same dress twice. M. Alexander Polovtsov, the lecturer said.

A few years before her death her famous house was burned down and 4,000 dresses were destroyed. Nevertheless, after her death, 15,000 more were found in her cupboards with several thousand pairs of shoes and three large trunks of silk stockings.

In contrast to this useless luxury, she encouraged education and opened the first Russian university in Moscow.

In interior decoration, she was far ahead of her time.

She employed architects to design her dinner tables—and had one which disappeared beneath the parquet floor when a secret spring was pressed.

States Colonists Are "De Luxe" Pioneers

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Aug. 8.—Colonists established in the Matanuska Valley in Alaska by the United States government are pioneering "de luxe" while the old-timers are going without, commented Miss Dorothy Focks, New York lawyer-author, on her return yesterday from a visit to investigate the colonization project.

PEER'S SISTER DETAINED AT ELLIS ISLAND

Still mystified over their detention at Ellis Island and the subsequent hearing to determine whether or not they should be admitted to the United States, the Honorable Mrs. Calypso Baring Liddell, sister of Lord Revelstoke of Great Britain, and her children are shown happily en route to New York City after winning Uncle Sam's permission to stay. The mixup was blamed on a complaint against the children's entry made by their father, Captain Guy M. Liddell. Left to right the children are: Peter, eight; Gay, seven; Juno, five, and Maude, four.

W.A. Plans Dance

The monthly meeting of the W.A. to the Prince Edward Branch, Canadian Legion, Langford, was held in the club rooms on Monday, the president, Mrs. A. G. Mackie, was in the chair. The meeting opened with the usual two minutes' silence, and the prayer, "An act of remembrance."

The president welcomed another new member into the W.A., the membership of which is steadily growing, and much good work is being done. The convener gave the report on the raspberry festival and garden party held recently. Despite the wet weather and counter attractions the result was gratifying. The date was arranged for the annual poppy dance, which will be held in the Colwood Hall, November 8. Arrangements are in the hands of Mrs. B. Deane-Freeman, at whose request an assistant convener was appointed. Mrs. Lorne Rodgers accepted the office, a social committee for the dance will be appointed later.

Mrs. Dorothy McLennan, secretary of the B.C. Women's Provincial Command, will act as proxy for the W.A., P.E.B. during the convention now being held in Kamloops.

An important meeting will be held on Monday evening next at 8:30 p.m. in the club rooms, Langford, in conjunction with the parent branch, to make arrangements with regard to improvements to Legion Hall.

BRIDE KILLED AT WEDDING

Bridal Car Overturns on Way From Ottawa Church to Reception

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—(Globe) Bits of confetti fluttered with the breeze to-day from the wreckage of an automobile that once was the bridal car of Miss Edna Jenkins of Saultville. The battered wreckage, lying at the bottom of a deep ditch, bore testimony to the force that killed Miss Jenkins only forty-five minutes after she had become Mrs. Wilbert Healey. The bride and groom with the bridal party were returning from the church for the reception at home when a tire blew out, tossed the car in the air and after turning over three times, crashed into the ditch. The bride died shortly after admittance to hospital. The groom escaped injury. His brother, Kenneth, driver of the car, was seriously injured. The bridesmaid, Miss Daisy Whyte, is in hospital in a critical condition. The party, only minutes before the crash, had left the church, where they had been showered in confetti and rice.

DON'T EXPECT SMALL CHILD TO PLAY WITHOUT BEING WATCHED

The small child playing in the yard alone must be watched and protected. He cannot be added with the responsibility of staying at home and then punished for failing to do so. The older child—over two but under five—likewise needs protection, for while he may understand danger he is still in no position to be made accountable for his mistakes in running into it. But he is entitled to more freedom.

RUNS AWAY

"My big problem now is running away," writes Mrs. L. E. "I have a four-year-old boy and I talk to him before he goes outdoors and he promises to stay in the yard. In two minutes he is gone. I have gone after him six or eight times a day for a month. Then I tied him to a tree. Then I whipped him. None of these methods was effective. "I have tried to teach him to ask to go away—and said yes when he did to encourage him to repeat this. It is only around the corner in another hour or so that he is playing—but he has a nice playground and ample and toys of his own. What shall I do now?"

THE BOY KNOWS

I should take stock of the whole situation unemotionally. What you are trying to do is to prevent the child from playing with someone. Your boy isn't running away. You know where he is and he isn't in any danger. You have only made this a misdemeanor by forbidding it. And the boy knows, without being told, that playing with a friend isn't a great crime—and so your efforts to prevent it have been ineffective. Ask the other mother to co-operate. Let the boys play in your yard one morning and in her yard the next morning. Then you and she can keep your eyes on them, and see that they do not leave either yard. If they do, separate them, and bring each in his own house. This is punishment enough.

THEY SHOULD ASK

You are right that children should ask to leave home, they should let you know where they are, but you make the child disrespect a reasonable demand because this one is so unreasonable. If the child is a good companion, why shouldn't he be allowed to play with him? If mothers would conscientiously view their commands and demands from such a standpoint—they would know why they can't manage to get obedience.

To-morrow: "Small Children Won't Davdle While Learning to Dress."

Navy and Army Helped Success of Church Fete

Lieut.-Governor Opened St. Paul's Garden Party Yesterday in Esquimalt; Net Proceeds $330

The funds of St. Paul's Garrison Church, Esquimalt, will benefit to the extent of approximately $330 as a result of the very successful garden fete held yesterday in the spacious grounds of Major and Mrs. A. G. Piddington, Lamson Street, and the adjoining gardens of Dr. and Mrs. T. A. Rickard.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, who was accompanied by Mr. A. M. D. Fairbairn, was welcomed by Rev. A. Gardiner, and performed the opening ceremony at 3 o'clock and from that time until 10:30 the gardens presented a scene of gaiety, without a dull moment.

BAND SELECTIONS

By kind permission of Lieut.-Col. J. R. Kingham, the band of the 15th Canadian Scottish Regiment, under the direction of Lieut. J. M. Miller, played during the afternoon and was as usual, a great attraction. Flaga in profusion added vivid color to the grounds, which at night were illuminated with chains of colored lights, the navy being responsible for the entire scheme of decoration.

Afternoon tea was served in a large marquee, in charge of Mrs. T. Phillips and Mrs. G. Sloman. The marquee and tents for side shows were all kindly lent by the army.

Many pretty novelties and knitted coats, plaques and fancy sewing, were displayed for sale under the con- venship of Mrs. J. E. McDonald and Mrs. T. Hadfield. Mrs. Izard was in charge of home cooking, candies were vended by Mrs. Hugh R. Pullen and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Barclay presided over a gardening stall, offering plants, flowers, fruit and vegetables.

Tea cup readings were given by Mrs. Mossop, and Mrs. Youson and Mrs. Fortescue revealed the future to their numerous patrons.

The girls' Bible class disposed of prettily-dressed dolls, and two quantities—quilted "lavender" girls, Misses M. Stephens and Piddington, were busy selling their fragrant sachets.

NOVEL SIDESHOWS

The side shows included a "house house" table presided over by Mrs. J. Quinn and A. B. Dunkley; a "magic bowl," in charge of Chief Telegraphist Dennison; doll shy, Corp. Morris and Stoker Haig. Hot dogs were popular as served by Privates Bull and Alldridge as "chefs," and Mr. Neville Smith did good business with ice cream and soft drinks. Bobby Stephens and A. Phillips sold cigarettes.

A shooting range was conducted by C. P. O. Hardy; quoits, S.P.O. Blakey in charge; table billiards, I. Izard, in charge; table tennis, under the supervision of S.P.O. Finmore and Cpl. Montgomery, all had their enthusiasts.

Golf croquet was played on the lawn of Dr. and Mrs. Rickard, with Mr. A. Izard directing.

MUNRO-HERRMANN
A garden ceremony in the lovely setting of the home of the bride's parents, "Spruway," North Shore, Vancouver, yesterday united in marriage Adele Emmaly, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Herrmann, and Mr. Robert Paterson Munro Jr., of Rancho Monserate, Bonaire, Cal., son of Mr. R. P. Munro of this city.

Through a lane marked with white posts, tied with white satin streamers and summer flowers came the members of the bridal party to a vine-covered loggia where Rev. William Stott performed the ceremony. Miss Marjorie Turton and Miss Nan Thomas were bridesmaids, and best man was Mr. Donald Lauder. Mr. Herrmann gave his daughter in marriage.

White corded faille taffeta was the medium for the lovely wedding gown. Cut on the style of a picture frock, it featured several rows of cording around the hem of the very full skirt, this corded note being repeated as a girle at the waistline and around the low square-cut neckline. Full at the shoulders, the sleeves were caught above the elbow in sheath effect to the wrist. An original touch was the bandeau of gardenias which the bride wore across the back of her head. Heavily showered with fine silver ribbons, the bouquet was composed of gardenias, white heather, valley lilies and butterfly roses.

Frocked alike in Ciel blue starched organza, the attendants were charming foils for the bride. The bodices of their gowns were pleated in front and the brief capes, caught at the neck line and descending into a V at the back, thus filling in the deep décolletage, were also finely pleated. Another wide frill of pleating hemmed the gowns and descended into the trains. Dainty summer flowers in pastel shades were sprinkled with a lavish hand on the trains and the matched the gay nosegays placed at the centre of the picture hats of blue organza. These, with a large arm sheaf of seasonal garden blooms, completed their charming ensembles.

Receiving the guests later with the bride, her grandmother, Mrs. M. A. Herrmann, and the groom's father, Mr. R. P. Munro, Lieut.-Col. A. T. McLean proposed the toast to the bride when the guests gathered near the large marquee where tea was served. A lace and outwork cloth covered the simply appointed tea table where the centrepiece was the tiered wedding cake. White tapers tied with white heather stood in silver holders.

Later, after the guests had enjoyed dancing to the music of the same orchestra that played the wedding music, the couple left for the south, where, at Rancho Monserate they will make their home.

An early fall suit in blue wool, featuring the rough weave, fashioned the travelling costume of the bride.

Sunshine Camp Needing Funds

Funds are urgently needed if the Fred Landsberg Sunshine Camp at Saseenoo, B.C., is not to curtail its community service for the remainder of the season. The camp, which cares for those mothers and children who would otherwise not get even a brief respite from unsatisfactory living conditions, is entirely dependent upon public support for its maintenance.

Although the Friendly Help Welfare Association do the necessary investigating and seeking out of the families most in need of this holiday, there is no provision made in the association's budget for the necessary funds. The camp is run at a minimum of expense, consistent with an adequate amount of good food properly prepared. The service clubs of the city have arranged this year to transport the families to and from the camp, which does away with quite an amount of overhead.

During the long and busy years of the late Fred Landsberg in Victoria the Sunshine Camp was one of his major interests, perhaps the one which lay closest to his heart. Further funds are also required for the erection of a recreation hut at the camp, to be used for the children during wet weather. This improvement is urgently needed, and Mr. Landsberg confidently looked forward to its being added to the permanent equipment this year.

Funds for the recreation hut should be plainly marked as such, and sent either to the Friendly Help Welfare Association, 1234 Pandora Avenue, or to the Empire Realty Company, 1008 Broad Street.

Province Teaches Its Young Men The Tricks Of Placer Mining

Panning gravel in the Fraser.
(Emory Creek).

The Cookhouse—"Come and get it."
(Quesnel).

In four outdoor centres of British Columbia 100 young men between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-five years are being instructed in the art of recovering wealth from nature by panning for gold.

Shown above are snapshots from these camps, established by the provincial government in a programme of youth assistance and education which has proved immensely popular both with the boys in camp and many visitors who have seen them at work. Officials in charge say the lads were delighted when they found their first "colours." The returns have not been very large, but still are promising. At the end of the season they will split up the pooled takings in each camp.

Some boys, who feel they have learned the business after a few weeks, will be grubstaked if they wished to strike off prospecting on their own. The four camp locations and the instructors in charge are: Nanaimo River, J. C. McGregor and James Rennie; Emory Creek off Fraser River, Ben Barlow; Quesnel, N. C. Larssen; Cherry Creek, near Vernon, Don Hardie. If the venture, which is in the nature of an experiment this year, is successful, it may be widened for future years. To introduce young men to timber lore, forestry training camps have been similarly located at strategic centres and are now in full swing.

GEN. JOHNSON MAKES $100,000

Former NRA Head Amasses
Fortune By Writing
Articles

By WILLIS THORNTON

Washington, Aug. 8.—Another rumor that you can cross off the list is the one about Gen. Hugh Johnson running for the United States Senate seat of Oklahoma's blind Thomas F. Gore. The general has just about decided that there is nothing to it for him.

Not that he could not make it. He would have an excellent chance to beat Gore. But the general, since leaving NRA, has done very well for himself, thank you, amassing a nest pile of something between $100,000 and $200,000, largely by highly paid writing. (Which he does himself, mostly in longhand.)

He might have to toss most of that stake into a campaign for the Senate seat, and while he is given a better than fifty-fifty chance to win, still you can not always tell in politics.

He would be taking a chance. And why rock the boat when you are sitting pretty?

The general, except for his writing, is devoting almost all his time to the New York work-relief problem—he is not doing a thing at present for Barney Baruch, who is in Europe.

A man who has a lot of money, like Senator Couzens, can afford to serve in the Senate and never worry about election or re-election. To a man who has not anything, the $100,000 Senate salary looks good, and he, too, can take a chance.

But to one who has just made a good start in rebuilding a nest fortune, the "everything to lose, nothing to gain" angle weighs heavily.

SPECIAL OFFER ON SILVERWARE

Old Dutch Cleanser, through its advertising campaign now running in leading daily newspapers and magazines throughout Canada, is making it possible for every housewife, prospective bride or young man or boy to build up a complete set of Wm. A. Rogers guaranteed All Quality Plus Silverware at a trifling cost.

The "Croydon" pattern is the very last word in smartness and beauty of design and the four units included are six teaspoons, one dinner knife and fork, three oval soup spoons or three salad forks, any of which can be obtained in return for three windmill panels from Old Dutch labels and 50 cents.

When the regular value of the units is compared with the price at which they can be obtained through the Old Dutch special offer, it can easily be seen what a splendid bargain the makers of Old Dutch are offering the thrifty housewife.

COMEDIENNE UNA MERKEL SHOWS HOW SHE MAKES A PICTURE

From a Correspondent

Hollywood, Aug. 8.—Lunch with Una Merkel!

Of the mass of activities in which you are going to participate with me to-day this seems most inviting.

So off we go, across town to Culver City, where the enormous Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio is located. A fifteen-minute drive brings us to the parking lot opposite the white executive building with its imposing two-story pillars.

Confusion prevails in the small front office where three attendants

Una sees us and flashes a big smile. But she cannot leave the spot where half a dozen electricians are focusing hot lights on her. The shot being a close-up of the actress, cameraman Charles Rosher is insisting that the lighting be just so.

Una seems ab to wilt, while her stam in sits on the side lines reading. She does — ake light as we stand, so she is not much good as a stand-in. Put Miss Merkel knows she needs the job, — instead of squawking, Una is doing her own standing in. She's like that.

OVER AND OVER AGAIN

First they are ready to shoot the scene. Talk is out of camera range as his coat is off — his vest unbuttoned. Una speaks her lines, but Director Roy Del Ruth is not quite satisfied. "Try it again," he says.

They do it again . . . and again . . . and again.

Jack Benny w — in and drags a chair up t — where June Knight is knitting an orange sweater. Jack, puffing his big cigar, looks like a columnist (tha. is what he is in the picture). He is just loafing, but still cannot keep away from the set.

THE NOTABLES PASS BY

At last the scene is played to Del Ruth's satisfaction. We take a short cut across the lot to Una's dressing room. Jean Parker is just coming from her, munching a great big apple. And there's Wally Beery with daughter, Carol Ann. Wonder if that fellow ever got in to see him?

Una's suite, done in yellow and white, is quite attractive.

"I'd better order lunch first," she says. "What will it be?" A minced ham sandwich and a bottle of beer is her choice—and not bad for a hot day.

The actress phones her mother. She does that every noon. A dirty spot on the window annoys her and she vigorously wipes it off.

While wait — for food to arrive, we set up a card table. Then Una relaxes on the couch for a few minutes' rest. Lunch over, a hair-dresser arrives to fix the actress's hair for her afternoon scenes. Una repairing her makeup at the same time.

BUSINESS COMES FIRST

The hour is up. Time to get back on the set. On the way pass Betty Furness taking some dresses out of her coupe.

For Powell, Vilma, and Buddy Ebsen are here, too. They are supposed to be in t — afternoon's scenes — have been on call all day, in fact. Vilma is getting impatient. She wants to get back into Hollywood for a fitting on a new dress she is having made for a party at Irving Berlin's. But it looks as though she is stuck for the day.

Bill Cully, the very serious assistant director, comes by and takes one horrified look at Buddy's yellow tie. A minute later he is back with a dark blue one—and Buddy's chin drops c — own to his chest.

They are ready to shoot again. The same scene we saw this morning, only with Bob Taylor getting th close-up. T — re's nearly an entire day gone and the sa — scene still uncompleted. t — t that is the way things go in H — ood.

BECAUSE Gen. Edward Braddock, commanding the British forces against the French and Indians holding Ft. Duquesne, now Pittsburgh, Pa., failed to heed the advice of his subordinate, Col. George Washington, the United States to-day honors the young American as the greatest in its history.

The British officer scoffed at hiding behind trees, as the Indians did, and walked his 2,000 men into disastrous defeat, in which he also died.

Upon the loss of General Braddock, Washington found himself leader of the British army. This led to his appointment as commander of the British forces in Virginia, and then as head of the revolutionary army.

On July 9, 1930, the U.S. issued a stamp commemorating the Battle of Braddock's Field, showing Washington in the uniform of a British colonel.

NEW OFFICIAL IS SOUGHT IN CITY

Appointment of a supervisor for all repair works performed by the city, was sought in a resolution from the Trades and Labor Council to the City Council yesterday evening.

Delegates contended proper supervision could not be given repairs and other construction work, claiming the school physical instructor was being called upon to do this work.

Frank Higgins, K.C., will address the next meeting of the council, to speak on workmen's compensation and the right to secure appeal from a court against decisions of the board considered unjust.

Riverside, Ont., Aug. 8 (Canadian Press).—Woods so high they hide the names on street signs, caused much discussion at a meeting of the town council here yesterday. In the end, R. J. Moore, of the board of supervisors, was asked to approve funds to combat the nuisance. It seems the works committee has a mover, but there is no horse to pull it.

The Chicago zoo is planning a new animal hospital that will even include a maternity ward for the apimale. The new structure, will cost $35,000. will be fireproof, throughout, and will have every modern convenience.

NON-FICTION

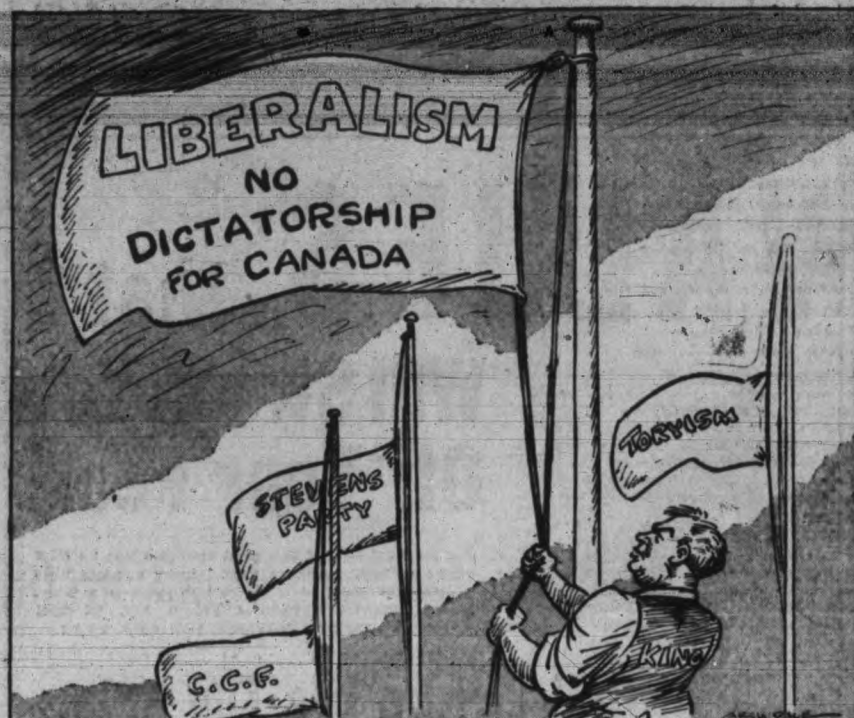

"Unemployed Man" (Edward Bakke) is a social study. Dr. Bakke, a sociologist from Yale University, lived for a year, 1931-1932, among the working class of people in Greenwich, England. The purpose of his study there was to ascertain "what has been the effect of unemployment insurance on the willingness and the ability of workers to support themselves." "The Unemployed Man" should do much to enlighten social reformers who wish to understand better the nature of the human stuff through which they hope to materialize their dreams. Evidently Dr. Bakke is specially equipped by nature and by knowledge for the task he set himself. The result is a work which is almost thrilling by reason of its obvious first-handness. It is illuminating by reason of its psychological exposures, and is, in the truest sense, socially educative. The narrowest bourgeois and the most idealistic socialist may read it with benefit to themselves and to their concepts of reality.

"One Woman's Story" (Mina. Mary Britton) is a book which is illuminating both as a human document and a record of the effects of fourteen years of war, revolution and their aftermath on one family and their circle of friends. Mary Britton is the daughter of an English mother and a Russian father. She grew up in St. Petersburg and was married, several months after the Bolshevik revolution, to a distinguished Russian surgeon. Her husband was one of those members of the intelligentsia who, although not in sympathy with the Communist regime, preferred to stay on in their own country. Dr. Britton appears to have taken no part in politics and never to have engaged in counter-revolutionary activity; he was completely absorbed in his professional work. But he came under suspicion, partly, no doubt, because of his wife's English connections, and the end was for him the same as for many others—he was shot.

"Capitalism and Its Culture" (Jerome Davis) is a heavily documented, critical analysis of capitalism and its processes, and of its effect on our culture as reflected in the press, education, radio, religion, and morality.

"Science and the Human Temperament" (Erwin Schrödinger) is a collection of papers by the 1933 Nobel Prize winner in physics. Most of these papers deal with modern atomic theory and its interpretation. They show the author's relation to the recent progress made in theoretical development of physics. Some were delivered as addresses on various occasions and some have been published in German.

sions and some have been published in German.

"Away to the Gaspe" (Katherine Brinley) is an account of a motor trip through the Gaspe Peninsula. Personal adventure and description of the country are combined to form an informal, very chatty narrative. The book is illustrated with twenty-four charming pencil drawings and a frontispiece in color. The appendix gives several motor routes through Gaspe, listing towns, populations and distances.

"Liberty To-day" (Cyril Joad) takes a pessimistic view of the state of political and intellectual liberty in the world to-day, and he devotes three chapters to the attack on liberty and three to its defence. He sees political education of the citizen as the only hope of preserving democratic institutions. It is a controversial book, which is concerned especially with England.

"Socializing Our Democracy" (Harry Laidler) is a new appraisal of Socialism. The executive director of the League for Industrial Democracy believes it possible for a Socialistic order to be evolved out of capitalism, without resort to violence or revolution. He enumerates the abuses existing under capitalism, and outlines what he considers a desirable cooperative state.

"Principles of Sociology" (Lumley) gives a sane and orderly presentation of the chief concepts of sociology. As before, the author emphasizes the scientific attitude and endeavors to help the student to understand and use the social system in which he finds himself. In the new edition the material has been divided into four major parts to facilitate teaching. Several new chapters, including one on culture, have been added and many new topics, such as crowd phenomena, mobs, herds, mass movements, neighborhoods, towns and cities, have been introduced.

"Hitler Reborn" (Dorothy Woodman) is an enlightenment to the general public in respect to the increasing degree of armed preparation for war in the leading nations of the world, during the post war period. The author believes that safety lies in building up an anti-Hitler front.

"Scientific Research and Social Needs" (Julian Huxley) presents an adequate picture of the status of science in Great Britain. Is science man's friend . . . or enemy? This is a question Julian Huxley attempts, in some measure, to answer in these essays that are result of his investigations in various research laboratories throughout Great Britain. He writes of the remarkable strides that have been made with regard to food, clothing, industry, building, health, and communication. But he states also that research is lopsided, overdeveloped on the side of industry, underdeveloped on the biological and health side, and quite embryonic as to psychological and human sciences. He offers suggestions also for bridging the wide gap between scientific knowledge and its practical application.

"Secret War" (Frank Hanighen) is a record of many interesting and important facts. Taking as his text Louis Fischer's remark that "the history of the next generation or two will be read in the light of the struggle for oil," the author discusses the oil situation in the United States, in Mexico, Russia, Persia, Iraq, Venezuela, Chaco, and other parts of the world, and discusses also the leading personalities connected with the oil industry.

STORY OF BROADWAY

They are making "Broadway Melody of 1936" here, and Miss Merkel is doing a scene with Robert Taylor. He is an important Broadway producer, she his secretary. She is telling him about the mysterious "Mlle. Arlett," played by Jeanor Powell.

The set is Taylor's office, the walls covered with photos of supposed Broadway celebrities—actually all of them film stars.

The candid camera got Una Merkel at a very embarrassing moment, as this picture shows. Look at her face as she takes a peek off her dressing-room window, wholly oblivious to the way her hand is caught in the blind.

Summer School Ends To-morrow

Certificates of Merit Will Be Presented

Teachers who have been attending the summer school in Victoria prepared to-day to return to their homes following a highly successful five weeks' session, which will officially end to-morrow at noon.

Yesterday they enjoyed a splendid concert in the Victoria High School auditorium. To-day those in the first aid class were going through their final tests, and to-morrow all students who have been successful in their studies will receive certificates of merit.

John Kyle, director of the school, to-day declared the 1935 session to have been one of the most successful in the history of the institution.

CONCERT

Opening yesterday afternoon's concert, Miss B. Fraser delighted the large gathering with an excellent rendition of the Bach Fugue in D Minor.

Walter Nasmith added to the fine standard of the presentation with dramatic vocal selections, including "Even Bravest Heart," from Gounod's "Faust"; Burleigh's "Deep River," Schumann's "An den Sonnenschein," and the southern States selection, "Water Boy."

PUPILS SING

Two of Mr. Nasmith's pupils, Miss Muriel Dawley and Miss Barbara Hutton, also presented vocal selections. The former, a descendant of a Chipewyan chief, appeared in the colorful tribal costume singing Cadman's "Land of the Sky-blue Water," "Pale Moon" (Logan), "Indian Love Call" (Primm) and "In My Brown Canoe," the last added as an encore. Miss Hutton sang with nice taste and commendably good diction, Oley Speake's "Morning" and Sprott's "Will o' the Wisp."

Under the direction of Miss E. Mary Young, assisted by Miss Nellie Scowcroft, the drama and elocution group of the school presented "O Bon Matsuri," or "The Feast of Lanterns," a play by Harold Gelling taken from a Japanese legend, popularized by Lafcadio Hearn. The presentation was exceptionally attractive with its fine tableau effects. Oriental costumes and excellent lighting.

Those taking part were: Elsie Davis, Gertrude Rutledge, Florence Houldsworth, Muriel Wright, Eva A. Burn, Elsie Finlayson, Kathleen Marshall and Beccy Travis.

Miss Elsie Finlayson assumed a difficult role earlier in the programme in a monodrama, "New York in 1935," where she played the part of a girl in the submerged classes job-hunting in the great city. The remaining number of the generous programme was the recitation by Miss Margaret Lutes of John Massfield's "Sea Fever."

Principal John Kyle acted as chairman. Dr. S. J. Willis, Deputy Minister of Education, and Mrs. Willis, were present in the audience yesterday afternoon.

Amateurs Again On Showboat

Twenty-six aspiring artists of Victoria yesterday evening took part in the amateur show aboard the Showboat in the Inner Harbor, before a crowd which occupied all available space in the grandstand and between the C.P.R. dock and Government Street.

Competition was so keen that four divided the first three money awards.

MILLIONS IN CHINA HOMELESS

Tsinan, Shantung Province, China, Aug. 8.—The provincial government estimates that 5,000,000 persons are homeless in this province as a result of the destructive Yellow River floods of recent weeks.

Refugee camps have been crowded in all sections of the flooded areas, where crops and villages have been obliterated by the widespread waters. The government made no estimate of the number of persons drowned, but recent reports from various areas indicated the death list will be high.

FIRE DAMAGES U.S. CRUISER

Associated Press
Quincy, Mass., Aug. 8.—A fire in the engine room of the recently-launched United States cruiser Quaker was extinguished yesterday after a five-hour battle.

The 10,000-ton cruiser lay at a dock at the Portsmouth shipyard of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, being prepared for her trial run. She and her crew were in the water when the blaze broke out.

The blaze was confined largely to the engine room, but it threatened the main cables and other wiring which lead from it.

MOTHER LOUIS MADE MISTAKE

Failed to See Her Son Whip
Levinisky Because She "Had a Feelin"

Detroit, Aug. 8.—Joe Louis's mother, who declined to accompany the brown bomber to Chicago yesterday evening to see the fireworks because she "had a feelin'" admitted she "had a played the wrong hunch."

"I don't know why I didn't feel so confident this time," she said. "I just had the wrong hunch. But I'm mighty proud of him. He sure did the job in just a few ticks."

The neighborhood of Joe's home was, if possible, more of a bedlam when the news of his one round victory over "that Kingfish Levinisky" came in than when the bomber won over Primo Carnera.

On Hastings Street, announcement of the technical knockout caught the crowds slightly unprepared.

In a moment, however, the din was on with pistol shots, automobile backfire, tin horns and shouts contributing to the celebration. Someone even got so excited he raked Lloyd Johnson with the business end of a razor, but Floyd hurried to a hospital, got his wound dressed and rushed back to the celebration.

DENIES HE IS ACTOR

Vienna, Aug. 8 (Associated Press).—Douglas Fairbanks arrived here yesterday en route to Karlsruhe and devoted most of the day to denying that he was Douglas Fairbanks Jr. He was so identified by Vienna newspapers. The film star said the reports were flattering but "utterly without foundation."

Vancouver, Aug. 8.—The whaler crew of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve here has recovered the trophy lost to a crew of H.M.S. Danae on her last visit to the coast by defeating the cruiser's crew in a race in Burrard Inlet. The Vancouver crew won by about a length.

FAILURES AMONG BUILDERS

The previous low was 1934, when the number of failures dropped to 242, which was smaller by 864 per cent than the $55 set down for 1929, which represented the record high. The defaulted indebtedness for 1934, which was reduced to $11,010,426, also established a new low, having been cut 33.1 per cent from the 1933 total of $16,464,837 and 73.8 per cent from that of 1935, when the all-time peak was reached at $42,079,919.

The complete insolvency record of builders since 1927, including the first six months of 1935, as compiled by Dun and Bradstreet Inc., shows:

Year	Number	Liabilities
1927	383	$21,712,497
1928	489	$27,891,511

WIRED RADIO IS NEW PLAN

Portland, Ore., Aug. 8.—Announcement that grand opera, popular music, lectures and news will be brought into homes over ordinary electric light wires through means of a new apparatus to be placed on the open market "almost immediately" was made here today by E. C. Mills of New York, general manager of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Mills arrived here yesterday from New York by plane. He said he had signed a contract with Wired Radio Inc., a New York corporation, whereby that corporation will utilize in its programmes the musical compositions of the society which Mills represents.

Mills described "wired radio" as a system of "transmitting sound by special 'carrier waves' over electric lines already charged with electric voltage."

DICTATORSHIP TREND TO END DECLARES KING

enough to extend as one from coast to coast, to co-operate in one, the problems we have to-day cannot be settled satisfactorily."

Mr. King pictured Canada under a Liberal government in Ottawa and Liberal governments in the provinces. This would give Canada "a chance as never before, for men of one party and of one mind to work together and raise this country out of the depression in which it has been for the last five years."

ISSUE CLEARLY SEEN

The issue to-day in Canada, Mr. King said, was between dictatorship and democracy, and the cumulative legislative results of the last five years were examined the trend toward dictatorship was marked. Only then was it noticed how liberties had disappeared and bureaucracy had been fostered. It was all done in the name of emergency and social reform, but he cautioned his hearers not to forget the same reasons were advanced for Hitlerism in Germany and Fascism in Italy in their initial stages.

DESCRIBES BANK AS "FASCIST"

As an instance of what he called the downfall of parliamentary control in Canada, Mr. King mentioned creation of the Bank of Canada.

The Liberal Party believed in a national central bank to control credit and currency in the best interest of the country as a whole. But the Bennett government created a private bank for that purpose—taking the gold reserves from the federal treasury and transferring them to the private company.

The government, the Liberal leader declared, had no representative on the board of the bank, except the Deputy Minister of Finance, who had no vote. Even the governor and his deputy were appointed for a fixed term of years and could not be ousted by popular will. The bank was "another Fascist institution" fashioned by Mr. Bennett, another usurpation of the rights of the people's representatives.

TIME TO DECIDE

The time had come, he continued, when Canadians should ask themselves whether they wished Canada to become a second Italy, a second Germany or a second Russia, especially in the light of the trend of the last five years.

BASICALLY SOUND

At the outset of his address Mr. King, who was introduced by Miss

Lillian Mowat of Kingston, a niece of Sir Oliver Mowat, a former Ontario premier and one of the Fathers of Confederation, said he looked forward in all humility to another term of office as Prime Minister, considering the state of the country. But his past experience told him of the soundness of the country and its people and his faith in the policies of his party.

Just as Sir Wilfrid Laurier had given Canada fifteen years of its greatest prosperity, Mr. King said he was sure a Liberal government to-day would lead it back to progress. This was especially true, considering the loyal co-operation that had been manifest in the Liberal Party in the sixteen years he had been leader.

Mr. King referred to the fact there were Liberal governments in every province but one and he predicted Liberals would sweep that one in a few weeks. Considering the political complexion of the provinces, Canada had "a chance as never before for men of one mind and of one thought to work together and raise this country out of the depression in which it has been for the last five years."

Speaking in the home city of Canada's first Prime Minister, Sir John A. Macdonald, Mr. King paid tribute to the memory of the great Conservative leader.

The city of Kingston, said Mr. King, also had an intimate association with the life of his grandfather, William Lyon Mackenzie. It was in Kingston the rebel leader had met and married Mr. King's grandmother and in which he lived for a time after his return from exile.

"He was more fortunate than I in finding a life partner," said Mr. King. "But perhaps I was more fortunate than he in that I have never had a price put on my head."

WAR VETERANS

To the war veterans of Canada Mr. King said he could point with pride to the record of the Liberal Party in its nine years of office. That was the test of the Liberal attitude toward war veterans. He had said then and said now that so long as there was a war veteran left in Canada a Liberal government would not forget his service.

One of the first things a Liberal government would do would be to inquire into the administration of penitentiaries and see if some reforms could not be effected. The people knew, he said, that where trouble in one penitentiary followed trouble in another there must be something wrong in methods of administration.

DANGERS SEEN

Mr. King then referred to the "peril" of third parties attempting to run the country in days of stress; the "greater peril" of a national government springing up and the "still greater peril" of dictatorship. In his recent radio speeches, Mr. King said he referred to each of these, but would elaborate on the third now.

In the last five years the trend in Canada had been away from parliamentary rule. The issue to-day was between democracy and dictatorship rule as against cabinet rule. In the last five years he had been appalled by some of the legislation introduced by the Bennett government. The Prime Minister had extorted all those powers from Parliament over the Opposition of the Liberal Party. It was only when these acts were taken as a whole that it was noticed how liberties had been taken away and how close Canada was to a "precipice of complete change in our government system which assures our liberty."

TARIFF INCREASES

Instead of winning the goodwill of nations, Mr. Bennett had raised tariffs to the highest point in history and deliberately angered them, the Liberal leader charged. Not even Sir John Macdonald, the author of the protectionist system in Canada, had ever dreamed the tariff would be raised as high as Mr. Bennett set it. It was raised not only against foreign nations but against the United Kingdom as well.

"BLANK CHEQUE"

As one of the "dictatorial actions" of Mr. Bennett, Mr. King instanced the "blank cheque" relief legislation, which set no limits on expenditures. Not even in war days was this necessary, said Mr. King. The Prime Minister had said it would only be temporary, but the legislation was continued year after year, being in effect even to-day. Under that system a remedy for an emergency became the established order. Under the guise of relief, banks were guaranteed against loss and Newfoundland was financed.

BY ORDER-IN-COUNCIL

Another instance of dictatorial power by Mr. Bennett was the "peace, order and good government" legislation. Mr. King said—a further instance of the subordination of Parliament. It was the same sort of thing that Hitler did in Germany and Mussolini in Italy and for the same reason—to deal with emergencies. Ever since, with Parliament prorogued, Mr. Bennett and his cabinet could do almost anything they liked, simply by passing an order-in-council under that legislation. They could do it even when Parliament was dissolved.

C.N.R. CONTROL

Similarly, said Mr. King, the government had done away with parliamentary control over the Canadian National Railways. Formerly the board of directors of the railway was responsible to Parliament through the government. But Mr. Bennett had abolished parliamentary control by abolishing the board of directors and appointing trustees for a fixed number of years. The president of the board could only be removed by approval of the two houses of Parliament, but the Senate was now overwhelmingly Tory. What control, he asked, had the representatives of the people now over the Canadian National Railways?

BANK OF CANADA

The government had shown a similar disregard for parliamentary control by setting up the Bank of Canada. The Liberal Party believed in a national central bank to control credit and currency in the national interest, but not the type of bank Mr. Bennett had created.

"In this Bank of Canada Mr. Bennett has fashioned another Fascist institution," said Mr. King. He has created a great private corporation with his own appointees in office for a fixed term of years. Again he was taking control of affairs away from the representatives of the people."

TRADE AGREEMENTS

The empire trade agreements were another instrument for shifting the will of Parliament, said Mr. King. Under the agreements in many instances the intermediate tariff had been raised to the level of the general tariff. This had made it more difficult to negotiate trade agreements with other countries should a new government try to negotiate.

Further, the agreements required a fixed margin of preference for British countries should always be maintained. This meant Parliament could not lower the tariff beyond that margin while the agreements remained in force. The tariff was pegged at a certain point. The tariff was a tax and surely the most sacred right of Parliament was the power to lower taxes. Yet that right had been taken away.

CANADIAN-U.S. TRADE

For the last two or three years, the time seemed ripe to negotiate a trade treaty with Washington, Mr. King said. Every time the subject was brought up in Parliament, Mr. Bennett said discussion would retard progress.

"I hope something of that kind (a treaty) will be brought about," Mr. King said. "But if it does, the people of Canada should ask why it was not done one, two or three years ago, as it should have been. If it does not, the fault will be with Mr. Bennett for his own authority without consulting his followers or cabinet."

NO CONSULTATION

It was the practice of Mussolini and Hitler to centralize authority in themselves just as Mr. Bennett had surrounded himself with power, Mr. King said. Even when the Conservative leader committed his party to a new reform policy, he did it on his own authority without consulting his followers or cabinet.

ELECTION DELAY

Mr. Bennett was hanging on to office to the last minute, Mr. King said. "Let me say to those who say the constitution is impeding progress. Do you realize you would not have an election even this year without the constitution which says 'elections must be dissolved within the next eleven days'?"

MARKETING ACT

Turning to the Marketing Act, Mr. King said it also took away political and individual freedom. The Liberal Party did not object to state assistance in marketing. It realized it was necessary. But it objected to the creation of a great bureaucracy "made up of Tory appointees" and the usurpation of personal liberties under the guise of extending marketing facilities. Crimes and imprisonment could be established under the act, not by Parliament or even the cabinet, but by boards responsible to no one. The boards were not elective representatives, but self-interested persons.

The Marketing Act applied not only to producers, but manufacturers of national products as well, Mr. King said. This permitted manufacturers to set up monopolies "and they are doing it to-day, where will be five years from now under that sort of legislation?"

CONTROLLED BY BENNETT

Under the Marketing Act Mr. Bennett had taken control of the whole trade of Canada to the Governor-in-Council, which meant Mr. Bennett himself, said the Liberal leader. The government had power to regulate, restrict or prohibit the export or import of any natural product. This gave it complete control of external and internal trade.

"Could you give a dictator more power?" he asked. "He has the blank cheque, he has all the money in the treasury at his command. He has control of external and internal trade. And all this was done just as it was in dictatorships in the older countries in the name of emergency conditions."

LICENCES AND PENALTIES

Continuing his attack on the compulsory clauses of the Marketing Act, Mr. King said the government could require all persons wishing to export or import a regulated product to acquire a license, not from Parliament, but from some board designated by the government. "Is that freedom?" asked Mr. King.

The act further provided that anyone who failed to obey any order of the Dominion Marketing Board, or of a local board, was guilty of an offence and liable to fine and imprisonment. This was not punishment for an offence against an act of Parliament, but for an offence against the order of some bureaucracy of which Parliament knew nothing.

BY-ELECTIONS NOT HELD

After ten by-elections had gone against the government, Mr. Bennett had made up his mind he would hold no more, Mr. King said. At the end of the last session, at which was considered far-reaching legislation, there were seven ridings without members. It was denying the people their right to be represented while taxed. In the same way, there were seventeen vacancies in the Senate, a legislative branch. The Liberal leader charged Mr. Bennett had used the empty Senate seats as a whip over his followers, telling them they would become ineligible if they publicly spoke their minds.

"It is the flood that counts," Mr. King continued. It was not a marketing act in itself or the invasion of provincial rights, although dangerous in themselves, that counted. It was when scores of acts were taken together that it was noticed "we have come to the moment where our parliamentary government is at an end." If the dictatorship was carried to its conclusion, people would be refused the vote.

Hitlerism had arisen in the name of social reform, Mr. King continued. But to-day in Canada, farmers could be stopped from exporting their goods or even growing them, without doing as the government said. "Are we going to let those things go on?" he asked.

NEW POLICE BUILDINGS

In Ottawa were two great buildings standing side by side, said Mr. King. One was erected by the Liberal government headed by himself. It housed the Departments of Labor and Agriculture. Right beside it was another, now being completed by the Bennett government at a cost of $1,200,000. It would house the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

At Calgary, the Prime Minister's home city, a barracks was being erected for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at a cost of $1,200,000, Mr. King said.

"There are only two of many buildings being built in Canada," Mr. King declared. "There are drill halls, armories all over the country, built at heavy cost. Why is that money being spent? It is to build up a great military force, because all dictatorships demand power and the last word in dictatorship is the cannon and what comes out of the cannon."

HANDLING OF STRIKERS

Police interference with the relief strikers was "a direct invasion of provincial rights," said Mr. King. The government of Saskatchewan was quite capable of handling the situation. It just went to show "how blind a dictatorship becomes," even on the eve of an election.

"As you know of the election to come," said Mr. King, "ask yourselves that little question, 'Whether are we tending?' Think of what has happened and ask yourselves if we are making of Canada a second Italy, a second Germany or a second Russia."

POST FOR MASSEY

Reappointment of Hon. Vincent Massey to a high post in the diplomatic service should the Liberal Party win the election was foreshadowed by Mr. King. Mr. Massey was Canada's first Minister to the United States and was chosen by Mr. King as High Commissioner to Great Britain just before the Liberal Party lost power in 1930.

In addressing the big banquet audience yesterday morning, Mr. King was speaking in support of his former private secretary, Prof. Norman M. Rogers of Queen's University, Liberal candidate for the Commons in Kingston.

MASSEY SPEAKS

Mr. Massey, president of the Liberal Federation of Canada, who also addressed the gathering, said Canada would have emerged from the depression long ago had it not been for the misrule of the Bennett Government. Great Britain, Australia, Sweden and other countries had made recovery, said Mr. Massey. Canada was just as capable of finding a way, but Canadians had lost their morale as a result of what Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, with Hon. H. H. Stevens in his cabinet, "has done or not done in five years of misrule."

Co-operation between provinces and Dominion in affecting immediate reforms and in changing the constitution was necessary, the former minister to the United States said. This could only be achieved, he said, under Liberal rule. Further, the Liberal Party was the only party in Canada capable of providing a strong and aggressive government.

The Bennett Government had strangled trade and the Liberal Party would revive it, Mr. Massey predicted. Arbitrary methods had created discord in Canada and the latest example of what he termed "the government's faulty trade policies was the starting of a trade war with Japan which threatened to reduce what little was left of Canada's foreign trade."

The banquet was held under the auspices of the Central Ontario Liberal Association.

Associated, in connection with its annual meeting.

ONTARIO SUPPORT

Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario pledged his provincial party to fight for the election of the federal Liberal Party.

A telegram from the Ontario Premier, read at the meeting, said: "Canada needs Mackenzie King." The Premier announced he would do everything possible to elect the federal leader, which he believed was a necessary step toward economic recovery.

SOME FIRST REVIEWS OF WILL DURANT'S MAGNIFICENT NEW BOOK The Story of Civilization

Our Oriental Heritage

"BRILLIANTLY WRITTEN"
 "As might be expected, this volume is brilliantly written. It is likely to be the most extensive and serviceable contribution to historical synthesis on the grand scale executed by any single author in our generation."

—Harry Elmer Barnes, N.Y. Herald Tribune "Books."

"BETTER THAN THE STORY OF PHILOSOPHY"

"Lucid, compact and stimulating. We extol his talent for perspective, his ability to assemble and co-ordinate diverse facts without the appearance of effort and his skill in presenting the result for the enjoyment of the non-technical reader. It is a better book than The Story of Philosophy."

Harry Hansen, N.Y. World-Telegram.

"VASTLY CONCEIVED AND SOUNDLY EXECUTED"

"The fact that such books can actually be written and published and bought and read in the America of to-day is one of the most hopeful indications of the great intellectual awakening that is taking place all around us. A vastly conceived and soundly executed opus."

—Hendrik Willem Van Loon.

"ADMIRABLE"

"He has done an overwhelmingly difficult job with the most admirable success. There has been no time within the memory of men now living when a book of this kind was more opportune."

Victorious Louis Matched With Max Baer For September Bout

THE SPORTS MIRROR

STACCATO rifle fire next week will shatter the stillness of Connacht rifle ranges, Ottawa, the rolling meadow-lands where Canada's sharpshooters gather to match their skill at the annual meeting of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association. Opening Monday the meet continues all week, winding up Saturday with the firing of the final stage of the Governor-General's match, the King's Prize of Canada. More than 800 riflemen, veterans and youngsters from coast to coast, will arrive for places on the 1935 Balesy team and top honors in the Governor-General's. Some marksmen set up quarters during the week but the majority will move into camp during the week-end, fresh from meetings of the Ontario and Quebec rifle associations.

An attraction at last year's meeting will be absent, however, the trophy room in the administration building being vacant of all international trophies won in 1934 at the National Rifle Association meeting at Balesy Camp, England. Stripped of the Mackinnon Cup, the Kolapore Cup and the Stock Exchange trophy, the Balesy team arrived home last week somewhat dejected but ready to fight for their place on the team.

A feature of the big shoot again this year is a group of fifteen English cadets, picked from the public schools to meet Canadian cadets for possession of the Michael Parady Trophy, held by Canada. In addition, intra-group flavor will be added by a group of eight under-grade boys. Competing under the captaincy of E. A. Jones. Proving the calibre of cadets chosen was the exhibition of marksmanship displayed last year by seventeen-year-old Cadet Corp. George Chapman of Highgate School, London. He finished second in the Governor's, three points behind the winner with 165 of a possible 175.

Strong representative teams have been sent from the west and east. British Columbia contributed sixteen and Alberta thirteen. A like number has been chosen in the Maritime provinces and Ontario while Ontario will be represented by more than 400 riflemen. Heading the western contingent is T. A. Jensen of Innisfail, Alberta's all-round shot and former Governor-General's prize winner. The eastern marksmen include Serg. Jack Ward of Sunny Brae, N.B., Governor-General's medal winner, and Lieut. J. Neal Dow, noted cadet coach and veteran Balesy shot. Quebec's representation will be headed by Capt. J. W. Houlden of Sherbrooke, the army's best, and Lieut. James Bos of Montreal. At the top of the Ontario division is Lieut. Desmond Burke of Ottawa, former King's Prize winner, and Lieut.-Col. C. W. G. Gibson of Hamilton, veteran Balesy shot.

In the most important stage of the meeting, all competitors go to butts Thursday to qualify in the Governor-General's match, the highest 150 qualifying for the final stage Saturday. Friday the cadets have their innings, teams of eight from the Mother Country and Canada firing for the Michael Parady Imperial Cadet Trophy. Last year the Canadian team, coached by Capt. J. R. Corneliussen of Hamilton, won by a margin of five points. The meet winds up Saturday with the final of the Governor-General's. The crack 150 qualifiers shoot off the 300 and 600 yard stages in the morning and finish at 800 in the afternoon.

A seventeen-day heavyweight wrestling tournament in Los Angeles played to 123,216 persons and grossed $117,462.50. . . . Vincent Lopez, a University of Idaho schooled Mexican, pinned Man Mountain Dean in the final to be proclaimed champion by the California commission. . . . Jim Lorne defended the 175 lb. title during the five years that he claimed it. . . . Rogers Hornsby, whose St. Louis Browns softened up the New York Yankees for the Detroit Tigers by taking three out of four, says that the New York club was the worst-looking he's seen all season. . . . "We've got the hitting and the Yanks have the pitching," sneered Mickey Cochrane, the top Tiger. . . . Mackinnon, often called the most grueling of sports, continues to hold its position as one of the fastest growing. . . . Mrs. Glenn Collett Vane is attempting in golf what Mrs. Helen Wills accomplished in tennis. . . . Mrs. Vane has come out of retirement to again seek the United States championship. . . . She gave the heavier crop fair warning by beating Jean Baer in the Oriswald Cup competition.

Gets Fight After Putting Levinsky Away In Minutes

Detroit Negro Heavyweight Makes Kingfish Quit After 2 Minutes 21 Seconds

Mike Jacobs To Promote Affair

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Max Baer, former heavyweight champion, and Joe Louis, sensational Detroit negro, to-day were matched by promoter Mike Jacobs of New York to fight on September 26 or 27 at either New York or Chicago. A definite decision as to the setting of the fight was expected some time today by Jacobs after a conference with Chicago promoters, who seek the battle for Soldier's Field, although it was considered quite probable it would be held in New York.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—King Levinsky hunted up his old haunts along Maxwell Street to-day and asked for the current wholesale quotations of fish. His once booming voice was stilled to a whisper. His wide, cocksure grin was gone. The old fish peddler was definitely through as a contender for the world heavyweight boxing championship, blasted from the big puddle by the brown bomber from Detroit, Joe Louis.

It was little fish for the big Kingfish. Six of his copyrighted punches and 2 minutes 21 seconds of firing—3 minutes and 21 seconds less than Max Baer needed to do the same thing last December—were all that the twenty-one-year-old negro heavyweight sensation required to drap the hulking battered form of the Kingfish on the ring ropes at Comiskey Park, home of the White Sox, yesterday evening. FANS AMAZED

To the utter amazement of the vast throng of 39,195 stunned spectators, the Kingfish, who had been so sure of himself, was suddenly reduced to a pleading for mercy almost before they had settled in their seats.

There were a few hoots from those who called the once glorious fish peddler "yellow" because he never appeared to try, but what the King took and saw probably would have scared many a fighting man into retreat. Louis, a cool, deliberate killer with dynamite in each fist, measured his retreating foe for a few fleeting seconds and then pumped his deadly blows to the head and body, getting only one wild, ineffective smash on the side of the head in return.

Three times the Kingfish was battered to the canvas, but he stumbled to his sagging feet each time until the brown bomber ripped in two vicious left hooks to the body that sent him down to stay. A pitiful figure, dazed and forlorn, he squatted on the bottom rope, unable to move his paralyzed legs.

"Don't let him hit me again; don't let him," he pleaded with the referee. "I'm through."

As the statuesque negro stood in his corner, receiving a tumultuous ovation from the crowd, Referee McGarrity and Levinsky's handlers helped the fallen Kingfish to his corner, where his manager, Harold Steinman, stood with blank amazement written over his face. He had trained his fighter for almost a month and had him down to his best fighting weight of 175 or three-quarters of a pound less than Louis.

ROUND ONE

Levinsky shuffled to mid-ring to meet his opponent. Louis drove a light left to the face and then repeated. Levinsky eyed the negro, Louis drove four punches to the head and Levinsky sank to the floor, but got up immediately. Levinsky backed away and threw a right to the jaw, with Louis countering with a right and left to the head. Louis drove a right to the body and threw a right and left to the head as Levinsky backed away.

Levinsky was wild with a right to the jaw and caught two rights that floored him for a count of four. He was knocked down again with another right and got up at five. Louis ripped two lefts to the body and Levinsky sat down on the bottom rope. He appeared to the referee that he had enough. Louis then dug two vicious left hooks into his body, and Referee McGarrity led the beaten Levinsky to his corner.

ESCOCAR WINS OVER SANSTOL

Puerto Rican Hands Norwegian Terrific Beating in Montreal Ring

Montreal, Que., Aug. 8.—The dusky shadow of Sixto Escobar still lay across the world, bantamweight title as he slashed out a decision in twelve rounds yesterday evening over Pete Sanstol of Norway. The Puerto Rican was the unanimous choice of the three judges at the forum.

The bout was recognized as a world title affair by the Montreal boxing commission, and Escobar, who gave the courageous little Norwegian a terrific lacing, is number one man with the National Boxing Association for the title vacated by Panama Al Brown.

Sanstol made good his promise to carry the fight, but doing so led to his own downfall. Escobar, known as a biter, proceeded to give the wiry blonde a boxing lesson. Hardly using his powerful right hand at all he jabbed away at Sanstol's face until he had it red with blood. In the seventh round he completely closed Sanstol's left eye with punishing hooks. After this he had matters all his own way, but was content to coast to an easy decision.

Escobar weighed 118 and Sanstol 117½.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

—By John Hix

Strange as it seems, the British sent a twenty-eight-man navy, equipped with two forty-foot motor boats, through Africa's dense jungles to Lake Tanganyika, there to win the lake from German control. The expedition traveled 20,000 miles in all. They put their boats on a steamship, Llanstephan Castle, for passage over the sea, then mounted them on railway cars at Cape Town to be carried 2,488 miles to Elizabethville in Belgian Congo, thence on up to the railroad. There the boats had to be hauled by steam engine over 148 miles or specially constructed roads before they could be launched at the scene of action.

All this time the German forces, already in virtual command of the lake because of their small gunboats, were unaware that a navy was being hauled overland through the bush to take them by surprise. Once on the lake the British detachment won control in two battles with German gunboats, paving the way for military forces to take control of the area around the lake. Their mission completed, the naval detachment returned to England. Their travels for these two engagements totaled 20,000 miles.

Veterans Unable to Hold Off Shock Troops of Commercial League and Drop Exhibition Baseball Game 5 to 4; Large Crowd Sees Snappy Display

Veterans of the diamond made their second appearance at the Athletic Park yesterday evening and after giving the Commercial League all-stars another scare, dropped a 5 to 4 decision to their young opponents in their exhibition clash. A good crowd attended and was treated to some fast baseball. The first game between the clubs ended in a 7 to 1 deadlock. Manager Fred McGinnis of the Old-timers stated to-day that he and his charges lost the game as the result of being outnumbered and not by superior playing ability. Manager Joe Casey of the Commercial League club used plenty of strategy and had a flock of reinforcements to rush in to halt the veterans near the end of the game. Manager McGinnis stated he will seek another game and will not be caught napping again and will have two complete squads on hand.

NOBLE GOES ROUTE

Jack Noble pitched the entire seven innings for the Old-timers and turned in a creditable performance. He allowed only eight hits and struck out four. The all-stars came right back in their half of the inning to push four runs across the plate. The all-stars got one more run in the eighth, but the Old-timers held them back.

The veterans played a good calibre of ball as evidenced by the fact that only two errors were chalked up against them as compared to five for the Commercial League squad.

After two scoreless innings the Old-timers got three runs in the first half of the third as the result of a couple of walks and as many errors by their opponents. The all-stars came right back in their half of the inning to push four runs across the plate. The all-stars got one more run in the eighth, but the Old-timers held them back.

LOCAL SWIM STARS PLACE

Eleanor Peden and Molly Wallis Take Seconds at Kelowna; Win Relay

Kelowna, Aug. 8.—Max Bockman, Crystal Swimming Club, Seattle, retained the Canadian mile swimming championship he won last year when he snipped into a terrific sprint finish yards from the finish to beat young Robbie Hooper, Vancouver, in the feature event of Kelowna's twenty-ninth annual regatta, yesterday.

After letting the Vancouver splasher set the pace through choppy water, Bockman got down to business in the last fifteen yards and won by three yards.

Eileen Boden, slender mermmaid from the Vancouver Swimming Club, captured the only other Canadian championship at stake in winning the women's 300-yard freestyle from Eleanor Peden, Victoria.

KEEN RACE

The Vancouver girl and the island star thrashed along side by side until a few yards from the finish, where Miss Boden pulled away for her narrow margin of victory.

Miss Boden added the half-mile British Columbia championship to her list, barely beating Molly Wallis, Victoria.

The Victoria Pacific Swimming Club defeated the Vancouver Swimming Club in the 150-yard medley for women, with the procedure reversed in the 200-yard mixed relay.

A pair of young tacksleppers from Kelowna dominated the rowing events as Len Hill and Max Oakes, after routing the Millard brothers of Vancouver in the tacksleppers class, slipped out and gave Alan and Hal a six-length trimming in the senior pairs event.

Vancouver Marksman Scores Possible in Match at Ontario Rifle Meet

Longbranch, Ont., Aug. 8.—Forced to their best, four snipers, three from Ontario and the fourth from the Pacific Coast, shot their way into a tie here yesterday for leadership in the rich City of Toronto match at the annual meeting of the Ontario Rifle Association.

The four, Sergt. Jimmy Kier, Vancouver; Sergt. E. O. Block and Capt. S. W. Graham, Toronto, and Capt. Jack Steele, Quebec, hammered home possibilities over 600 and 600 yards from a century total. They will divide first place money and shoot-off to-day for the silver and bronze medals. Eleven posted 99's followed by fifteen others with 98.

Meanwhile, sixteen riflemen carded possibilities over the 300-yard range in the first stage of the Lieutenant-Governor's match defended by Sergt. Major Harry Ruak, Ottawa. This morning the 600-yard range was to be fired to complete the first stage, and the highest sixty will go into the finals later in the day. Sergt. T. A. Jensen, Innisfail, Alta.; Sergt. Kier, Vancouver, and Lieut. G. A. Molecky, of Winnipeg, all scored possibilities.

Sensation of the day was the shooting of Officer-Cadet E. A. Widdington, an Oxford undergraduate. He stepped out after first-prize money in the Lieutenant-Governor's match with a possible and then routed veteran marksmen by placing second in the Gibson Memorial rapid-fire match.

Pte. W. M. Briggs, twenty-six-year-old member of the Toronto Scottish, was crowned king of rapid-fire men when he won the Gibson Memorial with a score of 44 out of a possible 50.

The City of Toronto team prize was captured by the Queen's Own Rifles, Toronto, with 494 points.

Historic Building Being Demolished

Old St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Rich in Tradition of Victoria, Being Torn Down; Once Housed Newspaper

Brick by brick a wrecking crew under J. Arndel, contractor, is tearing down the once proud home of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church congregation—the old building at the corner of Gordon and Courtney Streets, which time and the weather have reduced to an eyesore and fire menace.

And as they work at the demolition, the families of men and women whose grandparents told the tales and knelt in pews there cast a reflective eye back over the history of the building which in its time has been a house of worship, the birthplace of The Vancouver Daily Province, the print shop of Thomas Cusack in the days before linotype machines became popular, and more recently a garage.

It is a building which has passed through the wildest real estate boom of the city's history, when land values were boosted as high as seven times their present assessment and have returned to a point almost twice the original listing at the present time.

STARTED IN 1868

The foundation stone for the church was laid in August, 1868, by the Rev. Thomas Somerville, and the building was completed on April 4, 1869. H. O. Tidman was the architect and Hayward and Jenkins the contractors. The actual construction cost $11,000.

Rev. Thomas Somerville occupied the pulpit of the new church until 1870, when Rev. S. McGregor took charge. The latter led the services until 1881, when Rev. P. S. McLeod succeeded him.

Under Mr. McLeod the congregation grew to such an extent a new edifice was required, and the present building on the corner of Douglas and Broughton Streets was erected in 1880.

In 1872 the property was registered in the city assessment rolls under the name of Burns and Munro. Two years later ownership was changed to that of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. No assessment was listed until 1890, when the building was put down at $6,000 and the land at $4,850.

By 1892 the value of the building was written down to $3,000, the land remaining the same.

LISTING CHANGED

The listing then passed into the name of the Hon. John Robson, grandfather of Alderman J. D. Hunter and a former Premier of the province. As far as could be learned to-day, the building was not in use during that period; but was assessed at $5,760 on land and $1,500 on the building.

The assessment rolls carry the building in the name of Archer Martin from 1896 to 1899, when it was taken over by the late Senator Hewitt Beacock, who, with the late Hon. Walter Michol, converted the former church into the Province Printing and Publishing Company, turning out The Province Weekly.

Three years later Richard L. Drury acquired the property, holding it until 1909, when it was transferred to Thomas R. Cusack, who operated it as a printing shop. Land values had begun to rise as the big boom set in and the assessment reached a figure of $11,280 on the land and $4,000 on the building.

The Province, in the meantime, had been moved to Vancouver, where it became a daily.

Mounting values sent the value of the property up to $21,220 on land, while the building assessment remained the same, in 1910.

ASSESSMENT RECORD

The following year ownership changed again, according to the city assessment roll, E. M. Johnson and Thomas H. Leeming being registered as owners. Land assessment had doubled from the preceding year, the property being pushed up to $43,200. It reached its high point in 1912, when the assessor listed the property at $71,300 and the building at $5,300.

By 1914 Mr. Leeming had relinquished his part ownership to Marshall Gordon, who held it with Mr. Johnson until 1929 as assessment gradually declined to $29,250 on land and $4,700 on the building.

In the late year the property went to the late John Samuel Henry Matson and on his death went to the widow, Ada Teresa Matson, and R. T. Elliott.

At present it is registered under their names in the city rolls, with an assessed value of $10,490 on land and $3,750 on the building.

As demolition went forward, it was understood there was a possibility of recovering historic church documents from beneath the cornerstones.

FEWER NOW ON RELIEF

Family Units Receiving Aid From City in July Below June Total

A decrease of fifty-five family units on relief in Victoria during July from the totals during June was reported by the city relief office to-day.

The number of families registered during the month just completed was set at 864 against 919 last June and 891 in July of 1934.

The drop, though considered seasonal, was encouraging in view of the favorable comparative figures for July of last year when twenty-seven more were receiving assistance from the city.

The 1935 July totals were lower than they have been since the present records were taken. In July, 1932 the figure was 867 and in 1933 it was 921 for the month.

A slight increase was registered in the number of single relief recipients, the total being 407 for July against 400 for June and 315 for July, 1934.

Says Britain, U.S. Could Prevent War

"We Speak the Same Language and Could Make That Language Understood," Asserts Frederick Swift, New York Financial Man; Control Money and Sea Communications

By standing unitedly together, and keeping a close fist grip on their purse strings, Great Britain and the United States would be in a position to make other nations see the futility of war, contends Frederick Swift, retired Wall Street financial broker and student of international affairs, who is visiting Victoria.

"We speak the same language and could make that language understood," said Mr. Swift in an interview at the Empress Hotel.

"Britain's prime minister has said that his government is always prepared to co-operate with the United States in the interests of peace. The significance of that statement is not lost by the United States.

"Without money, war cannot be successfully waged. And Great Britain and the United States control the world's money."

Britain, he said, had already shown her hand by refusing to loan money to Italy. He further pointed out that it was now illegal for the United States to loan money to other countries without the consent of the O.K. by the securities commission.

POLICE SEAS

Another lever against war held by Britain and the U.S., said a strong one, said Mr. Swift, was the fact that the two countries were paramount on the sea and in the air, ensuring efficient policing of the high seas and altitudes.

"The very fact that the Atlantic is controlled by the navy of Great Britain, and the Pacific by the U.S. fleet, is a strong argument against war," said Mr. Swift, hinting at an understanding between the two nations in the maintenance of naval balance.

Furthermore, Britain controlled the Suez Canal, and the United States the Panama Canal.

There is not the ill-feeling in the United States over the war debt question as is generally supposed, according to the financial visitor.

The question will eventually be satisfactorily settled between the two nations, he believes. In the last analysis, he said, Great Britain and the United States paid for the world war.

Britain, he added, had repaid about 80 per cent of the original debt, despite the fact that she had received nothing from the countries which borrowed the money from her.

Mr. Swift knows London as well as he does New York, and in his active Wall Street days spent almost as much time there as he did in his home city.

He is a friend of Lieut.-Col. William S. Fletcher, D.S.O., officer commanding the 3rd Battalion, Grenadier Guards, and his brother, Lieut.-Commander Henry Fletcher, who was formerly stationed at the Esquimalt dockyard.

ROTARY SEES ROPE TRICK

William Harkness, Magician, Gives Sleight of Hand Performance

Sleight-up a length of rope with a pair of scissors and then making it appear whole again, William Harkness, local magician, showed his famous cutting trick which won him honors at the recent convention of magicians in the United States, when he gave a display of magic and sleight of the hand at the Rotary Club luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day.

Taking off the tie of Jack Trace who was standing beside him on the platform, Mr. Harkness then proceeded to cut it up much to the owner's horror. After handing him a piece of the tie as a souvenir, the magician pulled it through his hand and gave it back as good as new.

"A magician does not fool you, he entertains you," Mr. Harkness said, explaining some of his tricks. After his "explanations" the audience was more baffled than ever.

He drew lighted cigarettes out of the air, and turned six cards into sixty. Then he showed the Rotarians how poker sharps worked, and dealt himself a royal flush from a pack which had been cut by a member of the audience.

But the trick that delighted the diners most was when the magician turned to mental telepathy. He gave them a pack of cards which they cut three times. Then he asked three of them to draw a card each while he went out of the room. Returning he named the cards each and taken.

Herbert Pendray, president of the club, was in the chair. Jack McKay introduced visiting Rotarians. During part of the luncheon, Major H. Watts, blind musician, played selections on the piano.

CENSURE VOTE ON COLUMNIST

Vancouver Newspaper Writer Arouses Druggists in Convention Here

Comment by James Butterfield, Vancouver Province columnist, which was considered derogatory to members of the pharmacy profession, were challenged by delegates attending the twenty-third annual convention of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association at the Empress Hotel this morning.

The delegates left action in the hands of the council of the association, the opinion being that steps should be taken to correct the impression conveyed by the columnist, by a personal interview with the editor of The Province.

The convention's attention was drawn to the comment by E. S. Knowlton, of Vancouver, who read to the convention four paragraphs of Mr. Butterfield's column remarking on the session of the druggists here.

"The pill-rollers and pestle-pushers of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association are in solemn session at Victoria and Hon. Dr. Weir, Minister of Education, has issued a vague promise that there shall shortly be established a chair of pharmacy at the local seat of the higher learning."

"To-day it hardly seems necessary. The whole thing is done by the great pharmaceutical firms. They have brought the science of pharmacy down to a beautiful level of standardization. They supply everything."

"Fifty years ago the candidate for major or minor honors at the examinations of the British Pharmaceutical Society at Bloomsbury Square had to show a working knowledge of how to make every tincture, powder, plaster and extract in the pharmacopoeia. They pounded roots in iron mortars with seven-pound pestles, they macerated the result in alcohol between layers of broken glass and filtered the tincture through filter papers, bringing it up to strength with rectified or proof spirit."

"They mixed 'masses' with the proper excipients and rolled them into pills. Even doctors prescribed: Est. Gentian. Ext. Nuc. Vom.; Ext. Taraxac. and pulv. Glyce. for their customers and ordered the product delivered. All of which the pharmacist could do. To-day all the doctor does is order P.D. 477 and the druggist takes it out of a bottle."

NEW COURSE PLANNED

In this connection, at the Ontario college was proposed to have a veterinary course, Mr. Tapeccott said.

Another study which the speaker thought should be encouraged was that of the value of face creams and other general products. This would enable them to talk intelligently to their customers and explain why certain products were superior to others.

In closing, Mr. Tapeccott reiterated his appeal for closer co-operation among the colleges and was pleased to see the move for a conference with college heads proposed for next year's convention.

PLAN COMPLIMENTED

The plan of the Ontario college was complimented during the discussion which followed Mr. Tapeccott's address, and it was described as being a Canadian leader in the campaign for training of druggists.

The reading of scientific paper on "Some Recent Advances in the Chemistry of the Hormones and Vitamins," by Gordon A. Grant, B. Sc. Ph.D., of Halifax, was deferred this morning and the address was ordered spread in the druggists' journal.

Why Do People Marry Twice? Dorothy Dix Discusses Strange Habit of the Free

ACCORDING to some recently compiled statistics on marriages, more widowers remarry than widows. That is easy to explain. There are more widows than widowers because, for some unknown reason, wives are apt to outlive their husbands. Like the widower has a better chance to remarry than the widow has.

With the widower, remarriage is a matter of volition. With the widow it is luck. The widower who desires to remarry can put on his courting clothes and go for and look 'em over and take his pick of the fairest of the fair, since he is universally recognized by women as a matrimonial best bet. Not even the possession of children is a fatal handicap to him.

But all that the widow who wishes to remarry can do is to sit on the anxious seat and pray Heaven to send her a husband. There is mighty little she can do to help herself to one. For men have an aversive fear of widows and the minute one leaves off her mourning and begins to take notice they flee for their lives. And if a widow has children her chances of remarrying are so slim she might just as well reconcile herself to the idea of being faithful to the memory of her dear departed John.

For while most women are willing to mother some other woman's children, it is only the occasional man who is willing to support some other man's brats.

Now I am strong for widowers and widows remarrying, if, when, and how they can. I think a second marriage is far more likely to be happy and successful than a first venture for the very excellent reason that they go into it as professionals, so to speak, instead of as amateurs. Nobody ever comes out of marriage the same as they went into it. They have been disciplined. They have had their ego deflated. Their selfishness curbed. Their spirits humbled. They have been house-broken and domesticated and taught how to go on a leash. And every husband and wife learns about women and men from those they are married to.

Young brides and grooms think that marriage is going to be a picnic, and that they are espousing angels and little tin gods. Those who ring the wedding bells for the second time know that they are marrying just ordinary human men and women, with their faults and weaknesses thick upon them, and that if their marriages are festive affairs they have to make them so by being the life of the party themselves.

So the widows and widowers who remarry are prepared for matrimony. The man knows that it takes money to support a home and a wife and he doesn't have fits when the bills come in. The woman does not have hysterics and think her husband has ceased to love her because he no longer spends his time holding her hand and paying her grandiloquent compliments. And they both know that it isn't what you do or say in marriage, but the way you do or say it that counts, and that gives them a technique that enables them to get along in peace with each other where youngsters would fight.

Still and all, admitting that a second venture is a preferred matrimonial risk, one wonders why they do it. One wonders that those who have been happily married dare risk the experiment of trying to repeat a dream, of substituting another for an ideal wife or husband.

And one wonders still more that those who have been unhappily married to not dread marriage as they do purgatory. Even the common or garden variety of marriage has more kicks than happiness in it, and so one would think that wild horses couldn't drag those who had once gotten away from the altar back to it. But not so. Whether people have been happy or miserable in their first marriage, they want to try it again. Even the divorced rivet on their bonds again, often with the hour they are loosed.

The moral of all of which seems to be that whatever else marriage does to men and women, it unites them for living alone. The man who has chafed at the restrictions of domesticity, who has regarded his home as a jail out of which he broke at every opportunity, who has knocked his wife's cooking, doesn't rejoice in his liberty and gloat over the savory dishes of his club chef. He deliberately runs his neck into the yoke, and goes back to eating the cooking of a second wife who is no more of an expert with the pots and pans than his first.

And the woman who has been married to a man who was cantankerous and hard to get along with and stingy and unappreciative, doesn't think that a well-to-do middle-aged widow is sitting mighty pretty and had best hang on to her seat. She is never happy until she has another husband to complain about.

So they marry. Maybe because they are lonesome. Maybe because the widow or widower is like a masterless dog. Maybe because, as Dr. Johnson said long ago, a second marriage is the final triumph of hope over experience.

Uncle Wiggly and the Wet Hen

By HOWARD R. GARIS

No far from Uncle Wiggly's summer cottage in the woods at Green Lake were farms and gardens, fields and meadows. Lying on these farms and in houses near the gardens were many animal people.

One day the jolly old rabbit gentleman hopped away from his cottage and toward one of the farms.

"I may find a new sort of adventure there," he said to himself.

Uncle Wiggly hopped all alone, for his wife and Nurse Jane were busy in the cottage and the bunny boys and girls were making a new sand city and having great fun.

Soon Mr. Longears reached the first farm, which was kept by Jolly old Sea Dog gentleman. As Uncle Wiggly hopped around the end of the barn he saw, sitting under a bush beneath the eaves of the barn, a hen lady all cuddled up. Her eyes were shut.

"How do you do, Mrs. Hen," said Uncle Wiggly politely.

"HEN IS ANGRY."

All at a sudden the hen ruffled up her feathers, making herself look twice as large as she really was, and she opened her eyes and she cried: "Cut! Cut! Cut!"

"Oh, you're going to cut me, are you?" asked Uncle Wiggly. "He he he!"

"What have I done?" he asked. "Why haven't you cut me yet?"

"Dah! Caw! Caw! Cut! Cut! Cut! Ka! Dah! Cut!" screamed the hen, who was now very angry, ruffling her feathers more and more.

"Get away from here!" she cried. She popped up and charged Uncle Wiggly, her wings slithering on the ground like those of an angry turkey.

"My goodness! What's the matter with you? You haven't done anything. Why are you so mad at me?" asked Uncle Wiggly as he hopped away, for he didn't want to be bitten by the hen lady.

As the rabbit gentleman ran away, he bumped into the old Sea Dog farmer, who was coming down to his barn.

"What's the matter with that hen lady of yours?" asked the rabbit.

"Oh, she's a wet hen," barked the Sea Dog. "Her nest is built under the eaves of the barn and when it rains the water runs down on her back and makes her mad. She's crazy to get over being mad even when it doesn't rain."

"But," said Uncle Wiggly, "she seemed afraid I would harm her."

"Why she chased him!" said the Sea Dog. "She's hatching out some little chicken, making the hen mad. That's why she chased you."

"Well," said the rabbit gentleman, "getting wet makes the hen so mad, I can fix that. I'll go get one of my old umbrellas and put it over her when the rain drops off the barn eaves she will be dry and can hatch her little chickens in peace."

"That's a good idea," barked the Sea Dog. "Her nest is built under the umbrella over the hen lady's nest, doing it at a time when she was off it for a few minutes to get something to eat. When she came back on the nest, she was surprised to see the umbrella there making a shelter for her so she wouldn't get wet."

"Oh, how kind of you, Uncle Wiggly," she cooed. "I'm sorry I was cross to you, but you see you were a stranger to me. I thought you might be after my little chickens that will soon hatch out."

So after that Uncle Wiggly and the hen, who was no longer mad, became good friends. And if the sauerkraut will stop tickling the hen's nose, she will tell you what about Uncle Wiggly and the swimming chickens.

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

FRIDAY, AUGUST 9, 1935

Sinister planetary influences are active to-day, according to astrology. It is a time when the worst will be got the worst to avoid deception.

Labor is subject to a sway making for suspicion and discontent. There is an aspect of Neptune believed to encourage the workers of the world. Truth and honesty should be the measuring rods for all who hope to attain peace and security.

Accidents at sea or on fresh water lakes are prophesied. It is a time when it is best to be friskish weather through the autumn.

The stars have prophesied that loss of life would be greater in the year 1935 than previously. The stars have been kinder for many strange falls and seemingly needless injuries. Care should be exercised by everyone everywhere.

Extraordinary convulsions of nature may be expected. This means earthquakes and volcanic eruptions as well as floods and cyclones.

Mixed with the unfavorable are predictions that are most encouraging at this time. Through the transition period caused by long depression are developing great spirits among the younger generation.

Leaders of superior talents are to appear within the next five years. A few will win speedy recognition despite their youth.

Persons whose birthday it is the day, the augury of a year of fair success. For some there will be trouble and more for others to achieve what is unusual.

Francis Scott Key, author of "The Star Spangled Banner," was born on this day, 1780. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Laurent Boleman, Russian explorer, 1793, and Isaac Walton, angler, 1851.

U.S. RUSHING FIFTEEN SHIPS

Speed Award of Contracts, and Seek to End Labor Troubles in Navy Yards

Washington, Aug. 8.—Aiming towards the goal of a treaty fleet, the Navy high command last night determined to speed the award of contracts for thirteen warships on which bids were opened to-day.

Simultaneous with this decision to hold daily conferences to push the award, Secretary of the Navy Claude Swanson launched an effort to end labor troubles at the yards of its largest builder, and provide the navy with a weapon for future emergencies.

Written into the contract specifications was a provision that if construction was delayed by strikes the navy would appoint an arbitration board whose decision must be followed by the company to prevent cancellation of its contract.

THREAT IS VOICED

Such a threat was voiced yesterday against the New York Shipbuilding Corporation, at whose Camden, N.J., yards $50,000,000 of navy construction—three cruisers and four destroyers—has been held up for weeks by a strike.

Although President Roosevelt said at his press conference he expected the company to reply immediately to yesterday's letter demanding to know whether it would submit to arbitration, Henry L. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, said later that the time for a reply would not be until noon to-day.

START ACTION AGAINST SHIPS

Vancouver, Aug. 8.—Action has been started in the Admiralty Court against three United States steamships, Golden State, Point Ancha and West Mahwah, by the former crews of the vessels for back wages totaling $1,375.

The vessels have been anchored here since the crews refused to work them, in sympathy with the longshoremen's strike here.

Arrangements have been made to post bonds of $1,000 for each vessel to obviate the necessity of making formal arrests, and notice of the action has been given to the American Consul-General here.

Officials of the ships involved claim the seamen forfeited their wages when they deserted their ships. A total of forty-nine seamen are involved in the actions, eighteen of the crew of the Golden State claiming $691, twelve of the Point Ancha $636 and nineteen of the West Mahwah $637.

Cowichan, Malahat and Quamichan Teams Will Also Take Part in International Event at Whidby Island, Wash., Next Sunday

Associated Press
Coupeville, Wash., Aug. 8.—Penn's Cove here on historic Whidby Island, will be the setting, August 11, for the sixth annual international war canoe races, it was announced to-day.

Indians of British Columbia and Washington, whose ancestors once waged bitter wars and enslaved each other, will compete in friendly rivalry for the stiffest of the palefaces, whose ancestors, when slaughtered, scalped and beheaded by the Indians' forebears.

In fact, by a coincidence, the sixth renewal of the war canoe contest will be run on the seventy-eighth anniversary of an Indian uprising, in which the island's second and most prominent settler, Col. Isaac W. Dray, was called from a festive party in his home and beheaded by Canadian Indian warriors.

But the old bloody days will be forgotten when the seventeen war canoes line up at the starting line in this quiet cove next Sunday.

The Saanich canoe crew from British Columbia, winner last year, and the Nooksack crew from near Bellingham, Wash., are pre-race favorites, although there is a new "dark horse" entry from the Stillaguamish tribe this year.

The war canoes are of hollowed logs, in the old handcraft of the Sound tribes, and each is manned by eleven bronze braves. Their annual classic makes this settlement on the sheltered landward side of the Strait of Juan de Fuca's island bulwark the rendezvous for yacht club flotillas from all Puget Sound cities.

The island itself is rich in pioneer lore. Log blockhouses, grim reminders of the Indian wars of 1858-59, still attract summer tourists, and old settlers are proud that Whidby Island was one of the first places settled by the whites on Puget Sound—although the first settler, Thomas M. Glasgow, had time only to build a cabin and plant some wheat and potatoes before he was driven off by Indians in 1860.

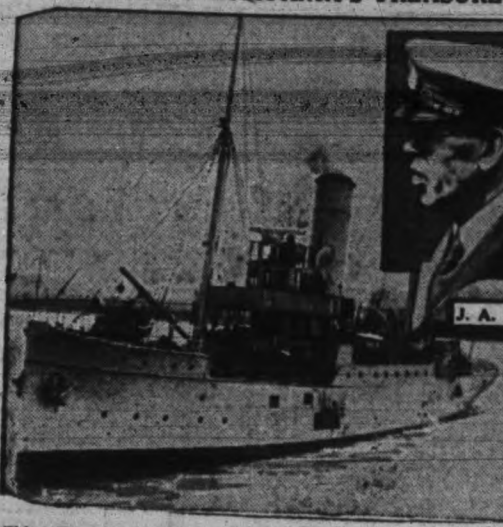

The island's second settler, and its most prominent pioneer, Col. Eby, was slain by northern Indians the night of August 11, 1857. Three years later his head was recovered at great risk by Capt. Charles Dodd, and the crew of the Hudson's Bay Company steamer Labouchere, and brought back to Washington for burial.

But the peace of the great white fathers of the "Boston Men" and the Sunday, when the Saanichs, Nooksacks, Lummins, Stillaguamish, Saksas, Skagits, Clallams, Makahs, Sequims, Sochets, Muscums, Cowichans, Quamichans, Quetsas and Malahats dip their racing paddles in Penn's Cove and strain toward the finish line and the international war canoe championship.

Bastic, who was one of the junior officers on the Lusitania, and who will be chief officer on the salvage vessel.

HERO WILL BE BURIED AT SEA

Captain W. Dixon Hopcraft Will Return to Pacific Ocean Where He Fought

When the Empress of Japan gets out into the open Pacific next week-end her foredeck will be the scene of a quiet ceremony, which will mark the return to the waters over which he once fought of one of the Great War's naval heroes.

At his own wish the ashes of Captain W. Dixon Hopcraft will be cast into the ocean in a plain silver urn, wrapped in a tattered Union Jack.

Twenty-one years ago this month Captain Hopcraft, as navigating officer of another Empress of Japan, equipped as an auxiliary cruiser, joined the ranks of the seamen who ranked high for their exploits in the war.

The Empress, after doing untold destruction to British and allied shipping in the China sea, had just been knocked into a battered hulk by the guns of the Australian cruiser Sydney, but the brain which had steered her in her blows at the commerce of the east was still alive.

Captain Julius Lauterbach, the raider's navigating officer, had not been on the Empress at the time of her destruction. He had left the German cruiser on a mission with the Empress, a captured steamer being used as a tender.

It was Captain Hopcraft who caught the Empress in a trap for which the German had just been set, and who brought him to Singapore as an honored prisoner, for the Empress's navigating officer had made it a rule that men should not be sent to the bottom with their ships.

After the war, Captain Hopcraft came to live in retirement in Seattle. Four years ago a visitor was announced at his office. The visitor was Captain Lauterbach, and together they talked of the days when their paths had crossed in enmity, of men who do down to the sea in ships, and of the new Empress of Japan.

Captain Hopcraft, died of a heart attack, in Seattle last Friday. His ashes have been sent in an urn to Vancouver, along with the flag from his last ship, which he kept with him when he returned to London to take up a shore position with the Admiralty.

FINISH WORK ON SCHEDULE

King Egbert Expected Out of Drydock To-morrow; Little Underwater Damage

"Nothing beyond what we had originally anticipated" was the report this morning of the Victoria Machinery Depot after inspection of the underpater section of the freighter King Egbert's hull in the Dominion Government drydock at Esquimalt yesterday.

It was found that work was needed on one plate just below the waterline, whose rivets had been started by the motorship's collision with the R.M.S. Niagara. Otherwise the only work to be done in the drydock is painting.

The freighter will be out of the drydock with all repair work completed some time to-morrow afternoon or evening, the V.M.D. stated.

The work has been carried out exactly to schedule, to-morrow being the date originally announced for completion of the $28,000 job, at the time the V.M.D. was awarded the contract two days after the collision.

Accuse Shipowners Of Making Trouble

Heads of Two United States Maritime Organizations Claim That Owners Attempt to Sow Dissension Among Unions

Associated Press
Washington, Aug. 8.—A vigorous defence of the newly-formed Maritime Federation of the Pacific came last night from two union labor officials, in a statement in which they accused shipowners of attempting to stir dissension within the ranks of western marine organizations.

Captain O. E. Rolstad, president of the National Organisation of Masters, Mates and Pilots of America, and R. Meriwether, representing the Pacific Coast district of the National Maritime Engineers' Beneficial Association, signed the joint statement. It was prompted, they said, by published reports that the organizations had "broken off" with other coast marine groups.

Rolstad and Meriwether said the reports were "based by the shipowners with the obvious design of sowing dissension within the marine organizations of the Pacific Coast."

"The Maritime Federation of the Pacific," they added, "was organized for the purpose of mutual co-operation against the attack of shipowners at any of the marine organizations."

WILL STAND TOGETHER
"In case the shipowners take overt action against any one of the organizations affiliated with the Maritime Federation of the Pacific with the obvious intention of destroying the marine organizations one by one, all of the organizations will stand together for defence of the purposes."

The statement followed a closed conference here yesterday morning between officers of the two unions and shipping company agents at which they discussed a basis for renewing an agreement which expires September 20. The conference was one of a series held here by the Department of Labor in an effort to restore peace to the west coast shipping industry and obtain release of seven ships tied up because of refusal of seamen and longshoremen to work them.
